Subject: CHINA; Shanghai - All-Slav and Minority Group Organizations, Soviet-Oriented, in.

BRIEF: Set forth below is a brief history of the All-Slav Union in Shanghai, its connection with other minority groups, and the domination of both by Soviet leaders. The leaders of the following actively pro-Soviet nationality groups are identified: Czechoslovakian, Polish, Yugoslav, Ukrainian, Byelorussian, Rumanian, Italian, Greek, French, Portugese, Finn, Norwegian, Spanish, German and (perhaps) American.

1. Recent reports from this office have attempted to outline various activities of the Soviet agitation/propaganda organization in China, as directed by TASS Shanghai. The All-Slav and minority group organizations in Shanghai which are Soviet oriented are a possibly important part of the agitation/propaganda effort, and a preliminary report on them follows.

2. Some years before the Pacific War an 'Allied Federation of Representatives of Countries Occupied by the Axis' (approximately) was organized in Shanghai under the chairmanship of John ALEXANDER, a British Press Attache. Its general purpose was to propagate against Axis activities and, in China, especially against Japan's, it was simultaneously an intelligence organization. The Pearl Harbor attack made it impossible for the Federation to continue in its present character; the Soviets in Shanghai saw an excellent opportunity to take over the organization, both as a propaganda medium and an intelligence service. The Soviets, in addition to the fact that they were not at war with Japan, had the advantage of a sly editorial line in the Russian press (within and without the USSR) to the effect that Japanese, Soviet aims were not incompatible, and the Japanese, being if not pleased at least lulled, did not interfere with the formation of various Slav groups in Shanghai. These groups were later unified in an All-Slav Center, located in the Soviet Club on Avenue Foch; the Slav groups maintained connections and a common program with the non-Slav minority groups. The Slav groups' public pronouncements were to the effect that the Slavs wished to strengthen their relations with all 'freedom-loving' countries, this union having as its ultimate goal a world union in which each of such 'freedom-loving' countries would be free to conduct its affairs as it chose and be strong enough to protect that freedom; it turned out, however, that the All-Slav Union was not merely Soviet-dominated but Soviet-directed, and any group which strung along uncritically with the 'friendship with the USSR' line

3. The Sino-Russian, All-Slav, and minority group programs in Shanghai, as elsewhere are largely directed, and certainly supervised, by TASS and VOIS personnel, and, as above, each of such groups is simultaneously an agitation/propaganda and intelligence network. The agitation/propaganda functions are directed by ROGOV, YAKSHCHIN, and KRIUKOV; the intelligence functions, until these persons were recalled, by A.A. ALEKSANDROV (The Third Secretary) and I.E. SHELESTYAN (both were MGB representatives). 7004

4. The leaders of the various groups are as follows:

(a) CZECH: Colonel E.J. TOM SHEVSKY, who is the leader of the anti-Soviet Polish group in Shanghai), NOWELECKI/NOVILITSKI, and GOGUL are known to have been active pro-Soviet workers in the Polish colony, inducing Shanghai Poles to become Soviet or New Polish citizens; however, GOGUL departed Shanghai for Warsaw in December '46. Of the YUGOSLAV, TSVILANICH is believed to have been a Yugoslav representative to the All-Slav Union in Shanghai last year. Of the UKRAINIAN, KLIMENKO is believed to have been a Ukrainian representative to the All-Slav Union year. Of the BYELORUSSIAN, both KADYSH and UREACH have been carried as the Byelorussian representatives to the All-Slav Union. Of the RUMANIAN, STEFANESKO and GUPERSHTEIN were reported a year ago as working together to form a Soviet-Rumanian Friendship Society and a Rumanian Communist cell. DENTICCI has been carried for some time as the leader of the ITALIAN Communist group. Unspecified reports have given the YANNOULATOS brothers as leaders in the pro-Soviet GREEK group. Of the FRENCH, this is the second time within a month that sources have given GROBBOIS as a leader of the pro-Soviet faction; for some reason sources did not mention Paul PREMET and M. SHIKIS. Of the PORTUGUESE, POGREBETSKY-MENEZES was previously known as POGREBETSKY pretending to be a Portugese; sources say that he is half Portugese. Of the FINN, Hjalmar FRUNDT is personally known to this office; as of a year ago, he was afraid for his life if the Soviets were to get hold of him; possibly things have changed. None of the NORWEGIAN or SPANISH leaders can be identified. The GERMAN cannot be identified as such, and the status of the AMERICAN group is somewhat special; SNOW, for instance, takes the most charitable view possible of Soviet activities, and Miss STRONG is a longtime vociferous fellow-traveller, but, as sources say, there is not genuine AMERICAN group in Shanghai or elsewhere in China working patently for Soviet interests. Investigation will continue, and further reports will be made.

To: Lieutenant Colonel ROGER A. PFAFF
From: John I. Coddington
Subject: HAROLD ROBERT ISAACS

Mr. GEORGE N. KATES of OSS, NSA, has just returned to the United States from Chungking. He reached Washington yesterday. He claims to have known HAROLD ROBERT ISAACS quite well in Chungking, and has the following observations to make concerning Mr. ISAACS:

HAROLD ROBERT ISAACS is about 35 years of age. He attended Columbia University, and received the degree of A.B. there in 1930. He is the son of an orthodox Jewish merchant, who is very wealthy, and who has always supported HAROLD, even though he did not approve of the radical views that HAROLD expressed in the 1930's.

HAROLD went to China immediately after graduation from Columbia, partly, atleast, out of a desire to see strange parts of the world and to experience "adventure." He went out by way of Hawaii, and stowed away for part of the voyage -- either between San Francisco and Honolulu, or between Honolulu and Shanghai -- Mr. KATES does not remember which. Anyway, this was part of the "adventure."

In China, HAROLD met a South African named FRANK GLASS, who was an "intellectual" and a very interesting person. GLASS was a Leftist, but not at all a Communist. HAROLD took a trip up the Yangtze with GLASS in 1930 or 1931. At about this time, HAROLD became a convert to Trotskyism, partly, at least, under GLASS's influence. He felt that "suffering humanity" required a "revolution" to set things straight. Communism was too organized, and HAROLD was a complete individualist, and reacted strongly against the organizational set-up of Communism, and so espoused Trotskyism.

He returned to Shanghai from the western part of China...

THE LEVY News Agency. Shortly after this, in Shanghai, he married VIOLA ROBINSON, who was, like HAROLD, a wide-eyed intellectual. This marriage probably took place in 1932. VIOLA was a great friend of AGNES SMEDLEY, the author of the Battle Hymn of China and of other books dealing with the Chinese Revolution.

An organization called the China League for Civil Rights was formed about 1932. YANG CH'ILIN was the head of this for Central China, and Dr. HU SHIH (later Chinese Ambassador to Washington) was the head of it for North China. YANG was at that time Secretary-General of the Academia Sinica. YANG was soon assassinated by the Blue Shirts (at that time CHIANG KAI-SHEK's bodyguard). HAROLD ISAACS had been an enthusiastic member of the China League for Civil Rights, and in the atmosphere of turmoil, after the killing of YANG, when all Leftists were under attack by the Kuomintang, HAROLD became the editor and publisher of the China Forum, a magazine that published a number of controversial articles. The magazine was protected by the fact that the editor was an American, and therefore had extra-territorial rights. Yet the magazine was regarded as a "thorn in the flesh" by Mr. CUNNINGHAM, who was at that time American Consul-General in Shanghai. There were various controversies -- the printing shop was broken up by Kuomintang strong-arm men; the mails were refused to the magazine; but he continued publication for some time, and smuggled the copies out to the subscribers.

In 1933 or 1934, ISAACS had a fight with AGNES SMEDLEY. It was an ideological fight, and therefore especially bitter. ISAACS and his wife left Shanghai after this, and moved to Peking. There he acquired a Chinese translator named LIU, and there he settled down to write his book, The Tragedy of the Chinese Revolution. This book "nails the Stalinists to the mast" and shows that they were messing around with a situation in China which they did not understand. Very many people who have read the book consider it excellent.

The book was completed, and ISAACS and his wife returned to the United States about April or May 1935. Immediately after this, ISAACS made a rapid trip to Oslo, Norway, to see his hero, LEON TROTSKY, who was living there at that time. It was on this occasion that he must have undertaken to translate TROTSKY's book, Whither France? ISAACS then returned to New York, and went to work for the HAVAS News Agency once more.

At some time in the late 1930's, he became interested in New York politics, and he worked hard for MORRIS THOMAS.

By 1940, however, he became disgusted with New York politics, and became interested in the war, and in "bourgeois life." He and his wife had a baby at about this time (their first), and ISAACS found he could write radio scripts and get good money for them. Up to 1940, he had been living chiefly off his father, but from 1940 on, he began to make money. In 1942, he did a "Report to the Nation" for CBS.

Soon after this he joined the Staff of News-Week, and in 1944, was sent to Chungking by that magazine. There must have been a certain amount of trouble in convincing the Chinese Central Government that ISAACS had really changed since the old days in Shanghai; but this conviction was evidently accomplished, or ISAACS would not have received permission from the Chinese Government to go to China.

ISAACS is a very smart man indeed. He knows a lot about China, and he knows a lot about people in general. Moreover, he is a great deal "smoother" and more diplomatic now than he was ten years ago.

Agnes Medley, alias Alice Bird, alias Mrs. Petroikos, an American citizen born on February 23, 1892 at Osage, Missouri, U.S.A. Member of the Hindustan Association of Berlin and of the Berlin Indian Revolutionary Society. Author of several novels in English and German, one of which "Daughter of the Earth" published by C. McCann in New-York during 1929 is believed to be a coloured version of her own life. Arrived in Shanghai during May 1929 from Berlin having travelled via Moscow, Harbin, Mukden, Tientsin and Peking, journeying on Passport No. 1266 issued on June 27, 1928 by the United States Consulate at Berlin.

By profession Agnes Medley is a correspondent of the "Frankfurter Zeitung" the official organ of the German Democratic Party.

She is in the service of the Eastern Branch of the Central Committee of the Communist International and undertakes the propagating of communist doctrines and activities throughout the Orient. She receives orders direct from the Central Committee of the Communist International in Moscow and has no direct connection with local Soviet communists, in order to camouflage her activities.

Her chief duties comprise the organising of workers and the establishing of communist organisations among the workers. The nature of her work is similar to that of Boulens, and it is probable that she knew the secretary of the P.P.T.U.S.

She speaks English, French and German well and is in possession of two passports - German and American.

Following her arrival in Shanghai, she resided at 85 Avenue Dubail, a Russian boarding house, sharing a room with one Gertrude Binder, an American citizen. She first attracted attention locally during February 1930, when certain correspondence from her pen published in the "Frankfurter Zeitung" regarding alleged licentia gigantic preparations taken by the Shanghai Municipal Council on August 1, 1929 for the suppression of communist disturbances, merited reproduction in the Soviet newspaper "Izvestia" (Moscow) on December 8, 1929, and was again reproduced in the local journal "Shanghai Laria" on February 11, 1930.

In addition to acting as correspondent to the "Frankfurter Zeitung" Miss Medley also contributes articles to the "China Weekley Review" a Shanghai publication under the management of one Edgar Snow. An article written by Agnes Medley entitled "Philippine Sketches" was published in the June (1930) issue of the "New Masses". She is also believed to be the author of an article entitled "London Behind the Manchu Chiang Kai Shek", which appeared in the "Red Flag" (Kote Fahne) dated Berlin, September 8, 1931.

She also finds time to devote attention to the political situation in India, favouring the anti-British party in that country. She is also known to be in touch with local Indian seditionists and on several occasions has edited anti-British propaganda on behalf of the Shanghai Branch of the Indian Youth League, an Indian Revolutionary organisation, occupying premises situated at 841 Paoshing Road, Chapel.

On May 15, 1930 Miss Medley left Shanghai for Amoy and later proceeded to Canton. During September of the same year information was received from the Hongkong Police to the effect that a house occupied by Agnes Medley had been raided by the Canton Police and that numerous papers relating to India had been seized. Following the raid she removed to the French Concession at Shanghai and remained there, as far as can be ascertained, until her return to Shanghai in the third week in October 1930 when she took up her residence at 92 Route de Crouchy. On January 22, 1931 she proceeded to Hanking and did not return again until March 5, again again taking up her residence at 72 Route de Groschy. She left Shanghai once again on June 16, 1931 for Canton, where it is reported she visited the Canton Authorities, returning to Shanghai on July 3.

On October 14, 1931 she removed from 72 Route de Groschy to Apartment 102, I.S.S. Apartments, 1552 Avenue Joffre.

During the latter part of 1931 it was ascertained that Agnes Medley frequently visited at their place of residence, Harold R. Isaacs and C. Frank Glass, two notorious local radicals.

During the same period, due to action on the part of the Chinese Government Postal Censor, it came to our knowledge that Miss Medley was at various times in receipt of communist and anti-imperialist literature, some of which was posted locally whilst some was mailed from as far away as Berlin.

On March 10, 1932 she again removed, this time to Apartment 304, I.S.S. Apartments, 1552 Avenue Joffre, where she still resides, and where she is known to receive Chinese and a few foreign visitors, some of whom are in the habit of staying all night in the apartment in question. It is believed that these visits are made in order that meetings may be held in connection with the All China Labour Federation (Union syndicale Pan-Chinoise, of which Agnes Medley is said to be a prominent member.

The Chinese who visit her are mainly of the student type, both male and female, whilst it has been ascertained for certain that one of her foreign visitors is Edgar Snow, the manager of the "China Weekly Review".

Agnes Medley has upon several occasions journeyed to the Astor House Hotel, and enquiries made by the Municipal Police show that she was in the habit of calling upon room 218 occupied by by Mrs. Dorothy Koll, a German Journalist, American by birth, a correspondent of the "Diplomatic Newspaper" (Diplomatische Zeitung), who recently arrived in Shanghai, ostensibly to distribute gifts from the various German Women's Associations to the troops of the Chinese 19th Route Army. As far as can be ascertained no political significance is attached to the meetings of these two ladies.

Agnes Medley is known to visit the Communist Bookstore, 426 Bubbling Well Road at irregular intervals, but she has not been observed of late in the company of Harold H. Isaacs, who is reliably reported to be great admirer of her beliefs.
