Enclosure(s)

The enclosed documents represent the first interim release of information responsive to your Freedom of Information/Privacy Acts (FOIPA) request.

This material is being provided to you at no charge.

To minimize costs to both you and the FBI, duplicate copies of the same document were not processed.

For your information, additional material responsive to your request was located at FBI Headquarters in FBI file 197-HN-31 and 197-HQ-238 regarding civil suits and/or administrative claims of which you are aware. If you would like this material processed pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), please advise this Bureau at your earliest convenience.

For your additional information, a record that may be responsive to your Freedom of Information/Privacy Acts (FOIPA) request has been transferred to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA). If you wish to review these records, submit a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request to NARA, Special Access and FOIA, 8601 Adelphi Road, Room 5500, College Park, MD 20740-6001. Please reference the file numbers 100-HQ-466603 and 100-LA-68168.

Records which may have been responsive to your request were destroyed. Since this material could not be reviewed, it is not known if it was responsive to your request. Record retention and disposal is carried out under supervision of the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA), Title 44, United States Code, Section 3301 as implemented by Title 36, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 1228; Title 44, United States Code, Section 3310 as implemented by Title 36, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 1229.10.

For your information, a search of the indices to our Central Records System reflected there were additional records potentially responsive to your Freedom of Information/Privacy Acts (FOIPA) request. We have attempted to obtain this material so it could be reviewed to determine whether it was responsive to your request. We were advised that the potentially responsive records were not in their expected location and could not be located after a reasonable search. Following a reasonable waiting period, another attempt was made to obtain this material. This search for the missing records also met with unsuccessful results.

FBI FOIPA Addendum

As referenced in our letter responding to your Freedom of Information/Privacy Acts (FOIPA) request, the FBI FOIPA Addendum provides information applicable to your request. Part 1 of the Addendum includes standard responses that apply to all requests. Part 2 includes standard responses that apply to requests for records about individuals to the extent your request seeks the listed information. Part 3 includes general information about FBI records, searches, and programs.

Part 1: The standard responses below apply to all requests:

- (i) 5 U.S.C. § 552(c). Congress excluded three categories of law enforcement and national security records from the requirements of the FOIPA [5 U.S.C. § 552(c)]. FBI responses are limited to those records subject to the requirements of the FOIPA. Additional information about the FBI and the FOIPA can be found on the www.fbi.gov/foia website.
- (ii) Intelligence Records. To the extent your request seeks records of intelligence sources, methods, or activities, the FBI can neither confirm nor deny the existence of records pursuant to FOIA exemptions (b)(1), (b)(3), and as applicable to requests for records about individuals, PA exemption (j)(2) [5 U.S.C. §§ 552/552a (b)(1), (b)(3), and (j)(2)]. The mere acknowledgment of the existence or nonexistence of such records is itself a classified fact protected by FOIA exemption (b)(1) and/or would reveal intelligence sources, methods, or activities protected by exemption (b)(3) [50 USC § 3024(i)(1)]. This is a standard response and should not be read to indicate that any such records do or do not exist.

Part 2: The standard responses below apply to all requests for records on individuals:

- (i) Requests for Records about any Individual—Watch Lists. The FBI can neither confirm nor deny the existence of any individual's name on a watch list pursuant to FOIA exemption (b)(7)(E) and PA exemption (j)(2) [5 U.S.C. §§ 552/552a (b)(7)(E), (j)(2)]. This is a standard response and should not be read to indicate that watch list records do or do not exist.
- (ii) Requests for Records about any Individual—Witness Security Program Records. The FBI can neither confirm nor deny the existence of records which could identify any participant in the Witness Security Program pursuant to FOIA exemption (b)(3) and PA exemption (j)(2) [5 U.S.C. §§ 552/552a (b)(3), 18 U.S.C. 3521, and (j)(2)]. This is a standard response and should not be read to indicate that such records do or do not exist.
- (iii) Requests for Records for Incarcerated Individuals. The FBI can neither confirm nor deny the existence of records which could reasonably be expected to endanger the life or physical safety of any incarcerated individual pursuant to FOIA exemptions (b)(7)(E), (b)(7)(F), and PA exemption (j)(2) [5 U.S.C. §§ 552/552a (b)(7)(E), (b)(7)(F), and (j)(2)]. This is a standard response and should not be read to indicate that such records do or do not exist.

Part 3: General Information:

- (i) Record Searches. The Record/Information Dissemination Section (RIDS) searches for reasonably described records by searching systems or locations where responsive records would reasonably be found. A standard search normally consists of a search for main files in the Central Records System (CRS), an extensive system of records consisting of applicant, investigative, intelligence, personnel, administrative, and general files compiled by the FBI per its law enforcement, intelligence, and administrative functions. The CRS spans the entire FBI organization, comprising records of FBI Headquarters, FBI Field Offices, and FBI Legal Attaché Offices (Legats) worldwide; Electronic Surveillance (ELSUR) records are included in the CRS. Unless specifically requested, a standard search does not include references, administrative records of previous FOIPA requests, or civil litigation files. For additional information about our record searches, visit www.fbi.gov/services/information-management/foipa/requesting-fbi-records.
- (ii) FBI Records. Founded in 1908, the FBI carries out a dual law enforcement and national security mission. As part of this dual mission, the FBI creates and maintains records on various subjects; however, the FBI does not maintain records on every person, subject, or entity.
- (iii) Requests for Criminal History Records or Rap Sheets. The Criminal Justice Information Services (CJIS) Division provides Identity History Summary Checks – often referred to as a criminal history record or rap sheet. These criminal history records are not the same as material in an investigative “FBI file.” An Identity History Summary Check is a listing of information taken from fingerprint cards and documents submitted to the FBI in connection with arrests, federal employment, naturalization, or military service. For a fee, individuals can request a copy of their Identity History Summary Check. Forms and directions can be accessed at www.fbi.gov/about-us/cjis/identity-history-summary-checks. Additionally, requests can be submitted electronically at www.edo.cjis.gov. For additional information, please contact CJIS directly at (304) 625-5590.
- (iv) National Name Check Program (NNCP). The mission of NNCP is to analyze and report information in response to name check requests received from federal agencies, for the purpose of protecting the United States from foreign and domestic threats to national security. Please be advised that this is a service provided to other federal agencies. Private Citizens cannot request a name check.

APPENDIXCIVIL RIGHTS CONGRESS

1. Found to be a "Communist-front organization" within the meaning of the Internal Security Act of 1950 and ordered to register as such with the Attorney General.

"* * * the CRC (an unincorporated association) was formally brought into being in Detroit, Michigan, in April, 1946, and * * * there was a merger into respondent (the Civil Rights Congress) of certain other organizations such as International Labor Defense (ILD), the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties (NFCL) and the National Negro Congress (NNC)."

The CRC "was created and established by the Communist Party as an organization which would utilize defense of civil rights for Party purposes and raise and maintain mass defense and bail funds for Party use. * * * the respondent (CRC) succeeded to the role of the International Labor Defense as the Party's legal defense arm."

"With increasing congressional and executive action in 1948, designed to meet the threat of Communist subversion, e.g., the indictment of the Party's national board under the Smith Act, the Party immediately directed respondent to fulfill its primary function to defend against the threat to the Party. * * *

"Respondent's major activity became the defense of Party leaders, and the Party continued to assign functionaries and members as officers of or to work in CRC to insure that respondent would operate in accordance with the Party program. * * * In addition, it is found that such a Party representatives constitute an important medium through which the Party exercises continuous domination and control over the operation of CRC."

"* * * The respondent conducted picket lines, issued literature, distributed petitions, sponsored mass rallies and demonstrations, and propagandized other civil rights cases, principally those involving Negroes, in order to arouse and gain mass support for the Party and its various programs and to raise funds for the defense of the Party. In so functioning the CRC has, pursuant to the Party's united front technique, associated the Party's struggle with the defense of civil liberties, Negro rights and protection of the foreign-born. It has, also, pursuant to Party strategy, recruited persons to join the CRC, for eventual recruitment into the Party.

"The CRC has raised and utilized in excess of one million dollars for legal defense and bail for Party leaders and members." It "has through mass campaigns aroused support for the Party and its policies. It is reasonable to conclude that this support would not have been realized in the same degree without the efforts of respondent in its ostensible role as other than a Communist organization."

"While ostensibly having a degree of autonomy, and being conducted by their own officials, * * * branches provided for by respondent's constitution * * * are, in effect, an integral part of respondent. * * * they were formed at the instance of the Party and have been dominated by Party members, as representatives of the Party who hold official positions in them."

2. Cited as subversive and Communist.

3. Cited as an organization formed at a Congress on Civil Rights held in Detroit in April, 1946, as a merger of two other Communist-front organizations (International Labor Defense and the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties); it was "dedicated not to the broader issues of civil liberties, but specifically to the defense of individual Communists and the Communist Party" and "controlled by individuals who are either members of the Communist Party or openly loyal to it."

4. "To defend the cases of Communist lawbreakers, fronts have been devised making special appeals in behalf of civil liberties and reaching out far beyond the confines of the Communist Party itself. Among these organizations is the Civil Rights Congress. When the Communist Party itself is under fire these fronts offer a bulwark of protection."

APPENDIXNATIONAL LAWYERS GUILD

The National Lawyers Guild (NLG) was formed in 1936. It was cited as a Communist front by the Committee on Un-American Activities, U.S. House of Representatives, in House Report 3123 on the NLG, dated September 21, 1950. At the 1971 NLG Convention, a resolution was introduced that the NLG direct its actions and programs toward inmate groups, prison organizing groups, jailhouse lawyers, and military projects attacking military stockade conditions. At a June, 1972, NLG Conference, it was stated in a position paper that "Prisoners are the revolutionary vanguard of our struggle. When prisoners come out, they will lead us in the streets because they have experienced the most blatant oppression that this system can produce." A paper presented at the 1973 NLG Convention concluded that the prison movement is an important aspect of the revolutionary struggle in "Amerika" and that legal people, because they have free access to prisons, are important to the prison movement. It was noted that "...by building organizations of revolutionary people...we can move forward to make a victorious revolution in this country." A resolution circulated at the 1973 NLG Convention equated military organizing with the proletariat organizing necessary for a successful revolution. It was pointed out that the military must be neutralized before a successful revolution is possible and that it may be possible to mobilize the military in support of a revolution. The NLG is presently headquartered in New York, New York.

On November 16, 1977, [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] California, advised SA ANDERSON he recognizes the name of SHEINBAUM as individuals residing within that area. He is not acquainted with the applicant or his wife, and noted that inasmuch as the terrain is hilly in the area of Bentley Circle, many people have large hedges which screen each residence, and therefore they do not associate with each other to any great degree.

On November 16, 1977, [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] California, advised SA ANDERSON she can verify the period of residence as approximately correct. She had only one contact with Mr. SHEINBAUM, and that was concerning the fact that [REDACTED]

b6

[REDACTED] she spoke to him in this regard. She noted there must be two houses on the lot where the [REDACTED] reside. Many small cars are always parked in front of the residence, which creates a traffic hazard on the narrow, winding [REDACTED]. She does not think very highly of the applicant's character in view of the above [REDACTED] incident. She knows the [REDACTED] are loners and do not appear to associate with any of the neighbors. She could make no other comment concerning their character, associates, reputation or loyalty, but she does not believe that the applicant is the type who should occupy a government position.

REFERENCES

On October 28, 1977, MAX PALEVSKY, 924 Westwood Boulevard, Suite 700, Los Angeles, California, advised SA [REDACTED] he has known the applicant as a social and business acquaintance for approximately ten years. He stated applicant is an individual of outstanding character, associates, reputation and loyalty, and to PALEVSKY's knowledge, applicant has never been arrested nor in trouble with the law. PALEVSKY advised he believes applicant divides his time between his financial and political interests, and has no specific occupation. He stated applicant is in some manner connected with the ACLU, although he is not an attorney, but an investor.

PALEVSKY advised he would recommend applicant for a position for the United States Government.

According to a Los Angeles Times article appearing in the July 10, 1972 issue, page one, part three, MAX PALEVSKY is the former Director and Chairman of the Board of Xerox Corporation and Co-Chairman of Senator GEORGE MC GOVERN's National Finance Committee during his campaign for the Presidency. The article also indicated that he contributed financial support to the campaign.

This Times article further described PALEVSKY as "perhaps the most radical multi-millionaire in all Bel Air". It is noted that Bel Air is an exclusive residential area in the Los Angeles, California area. This article further indicated that PALEVSKY, in 1972, was the Chairman of the Board of "Rolling Stone" Bi-monthly Rock Music Newspaper.

On October 31, 1977, GEORGE SLAFF, 712 Whittier Drive, Beverly Hills, California, advised SA [redacted] [redacted] he has known applicant as a social and political acquaintance for approximately 12 years. He advised applicant was an extremely dedicated individual of excellent character and extreme loyalty. He stated applicant associates with only the best of people, and is held in the highest regard by his peers. SLAFF stated applicant, who is an economist, has devoted himself to civic affairs.

b7c

LA 116-73933

SLAFF advised he knows nothing of a derogatory nature regarding applicant, and has never known him to use drugs nor alcohol to excess. He stated applicant's wife is regarded as an excellent individual by all that know her. SLAFF advised he would recommend the applicant without reservation.

It is noted that the applicant's reference, GEORGE SLAFF, is the former Mayor of Beverly Hills, California, and General Counsel for Metro Goldwyn Mayer Studios and personal attorney for SAMUEL GOLDWYN.

LA T-1 advised on [redacted] that [redacted] He came to considerable public attention when, after becoming Mayor of Beverly Hills, California, in 1969, he appointed JOSEPH PAUL KIMBLE as Chief of Police. KIMBLE publicly announced that he believed in the socialistic approach towards law enforcement.

It is noted that in the "Guide to Subversive Organizations and Publications", prepared and released by the Committee on Unamerican Activities, U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C., that on page 121 the National Lawyers Guild is characterized as follows:

1. Cited as a communist front (Special Committee on Unamerican Activities, House Report 1311 on the CIO Political Action Committee, March 29, 1944, page 149).
2. Cited as a communist front, which "is the foremost legal bullwork of the Communist Party, its front organizations, and controlled unions", and which "since its inception has never failed to rally to the legal defense of the Communist Party and individual members thereof, including known espionage agents". (Committee on Unamerican Activities, House Report 3123 on the National Lawyers Guild, September 21, 1950, originally related September 17, 1950.)

3. "To defend the cases of communist law-breakers, fronts have been devised making special appeals in behalf of civil liberties, and reaching out far beyond the confines of the Communist Party itself. Among these organizations are the . . . National Lawyers Guild. When the Communist Party itself is under fire, these offer a bull-work of protection". (Internal Security Subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Handbook For Americans, S. Doc. 117, April 23, 1956, page 91.)

LA T-2 advised on that

In the May 20, 1965 issue of the Daily Californian, a student newspaper at the University of California, Berkeley, listed STANLEY SHEINBAUM as a speaker on Friday Nights Vietnam Day Schedule, and described him as the designer of the Vietnam Strategic Hamlets in South Vietnam, and during his speech was critical of American foreign policy based on his five years experience in Vietnam for Michigan State University.

It is noted that LA T-2 is unavailable for recontact or testimony.

SHEINBAUM was a Democratic candidate for the Congress from the 13th Congressional District, but lost the primary election on June 7, 1966.

It is noted that STANLEY K. SHEINBAUM was the Chairman of the Pentagon Papers Fund, Inc. This organization was organized to solicit contributions for the legal defense of DANIEL ELLSBERG and ANTHONY RUSSO, who were indicted and tried for their publication of the "Pentagon Papers".

LA 116-73933

APPENDIX

CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF
DEMOCRATIC INSTITUTIONS (CSDI)

A confidential source, who has furnished reliable information in the past, advised on February 21, 1966, that the CSDI, Box 4068, Santa Barbara, California, evolved in the late 1950's as a part of the Fund for the Republic, which in turn had been established by the Ford Foundation. In 1959, the Center moved from New York City to Santa Barbara and has now become an independent and self-sustaining organization under the former direction of Dr. ROBERT M. HUTCHINS, former president of the University of Chicago, now deceased.

The source advised that the Southern California District Communist Party (SCDCP) has no control or influence over the CSDI. There is a strong liberal element in the CSDI, according to the source, and the SCDCP has attempted to establish meaningful contacts with certain elements in the Center. These attempts have been on a covert basis and have had only limited success.

On January 1, 1957, applicant was appointed as a Continuing Instructor (permanent), and on September 1, 1957, was appointed as Coordinator of the VietNam Project, where he remained until his resignation on August 31, 1960, for a position with the Center for Studies of Democratic Institutions, Santa Barbara, California. [REDACTED] Educational Exchange, International Studies and Programs, MSU, advised he recalled the applicant, as they were both working with the VietNam Project. He stated that he remembered applicant as doing a good job regarding the project during his employment with MSU; however, he felt that applicant had used poor judgment since that time, specifically by writing an article in the "Rampart" magazine approximately 1964, wherein he disclosed that the MSU International Programs had been used by the [REDACTED] and further disclosed several [REDACTED] as such. [REDACTED] stated that although he has had practically no personal contact with applicant since he left MSU, he felt that applicant had become ideological to the point of impracticality. [REDACTED] stressed that this is his personal belief, based solely on hearsay accounts of applicant's actions, and reiterated he was cooperative and competent during his MSU employment.

On November 21, 1977, Mrs. BETTY MAE SHEINBAUM, who is also known as Mrs. BETTY MAE WARNER SPERLING SHEINBAUM, wife of the applicant, residence 240 Bentley Circle, Los Angeles, California, advised SA MERTON R. ANDERSON of the following:

She married the applicant, STANLEY K. SHEINBAUM, in Phoenix, Arizona, in 1963. She has been the recipient of several trusts over the years from her father, the deceased HARRY M. WARNER. She recalled that her father set up the Betty Warner Sheinbaum Trust for herself and the applicant sometime during the middle 1960's. This Trust amounts to several millions of dollars. The applicant acts as a consultant and fiduciary for the trust, has done so since October, 1969, and she and the applicant are the trustees of this trust. She noted that since 1970 the only occupations the applicant has is presently with the Board of Regents of the University of California, since June, 1977, and also as a fiduciary for this trust. She said that the applicant is constantly checking on their investments in the United States and in various areas overseas. As a matter of fact she and the applicant spend some four months of each year residing overseas, and they maintain a summer home in Grosseto, Italy. The job of being a fiduciary is a full time position for the applicant. She added that the applicant also devotes some of his free time to the American Civil Liberties Union Foundation, of Southern California, Los Angeles, California, of which he is the Chairman.

Naturally, she continued, she has nothing but the highest regard for the financial ability, intelligence and integrity of her husband, the applicant. She has the highest regard for his moral character, associates, reputation and loyalty and certainly recommends him for a complete background clearance.

A characterization of the Center for Cuban Studies is located in the Appendix of this report.

"The Worker", an East coast Communist newspaper which has suspended publication, in its issue of April 6, 1965, Page two, Column two, reflects that STANLEY K. SHEINBAUM who was then with the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions at Santa Barbara, California, was one of 23 scholars who signed a petition to President JOHNSON to end the war in Vietnam.

~~SECRET - NO FOREIGN DISSEMINATION~~

Center for Cuban Studies (CCS)

On November 13, 1972, a source described the Center for Cuban Studies as a New York City based group of United States citizens who have some Cuban affiliations and whose politics are pro-Castro. This group operates from a Center located at 220 East 23rd St. New York City. The purpose of the Center is to provide Cuban cultural information and political propaganda favorable to the Castro regime. Sources have reported Cuban Intelligence Officers assigned to the Cuban Mission to the United Nations frequently visit the Center. There are indications that the Center is under the direction of the Cuban Government.

Material published in 1976 and furnished by a confidential source describes the CCS as follows:

The Center for Cuban Studies is a non-profit, tax-exempt library and information center about Cuba. It publishes a bimonthly magazine of original Cuban documents in translation; Canto Libre, bilingual cultural quarterly; educational packets, and occasional selected speeches and documents. Center activities include film showings, lectures, exhibits, concerts and Spanish classes. The library is open to the public and an educational services program provides groups with speakers and a wide range of audio-visual materials. Center for Cuban Studies, 220 E. 23 St., New York, N. Y. 10010.

Sheinbaum Leaving This Week on Trip To Asia, Cambodia

Stanley Sheinbaum, an economist with the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, is leaving Wednesday on a three-week trip to Cambodia and southeast Asia.

He said that he is going on his own and not as a Center official.

"I want to find out if possible what's going on over there," he said. "I can't get the information in the American press."

Clarifying rumors that he is planning to run for congress, Sheinbaum said it is true that he has been asked to consider it but that he has not made up his mind.

"I can't see myself holding political office," he said, "but I haven't given my final answer."

It was reported that Sheinbaum would run on an individual platform. To this he answered that if he runs he would campaign as a Democrat, but on an anti-administration platform.

Sheinbaum Calls Policy In Asia 'Misconception'

United States leaders are determined to "secure" southeast Asia militarily on the "misconception that war with China is inevitable," a critic of Washington policy said here yesterday.

Stanley Sheinbaum, a Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions economist just back from Cambodia, predicted that the United States "will have as many troops engaged in Thailand in two years as we now have in Vietnam."

He charged that Viet Cong use of northeast Cambodia to stage raids in Vietnam has been deliberately exact, rated as part of a campaign by administration officials to prepare the United States for further United States involvement in Cambodia, Laos and Thailand.

He said he and journalist Robert Scheer traveled "every road in north east Cambodia" by jeep, and flew over the area. He said they found "no evidence" that the main Red supply line -- the Ho Chi Minh trail -- crosses Cambodia, or that there are large staging areas there.

Sheinbaum said fleeing Viet Cong no doubt use Cambodian jungles for sanctuary, but only in small groups.

"The Cambodians are so scared of the United States coming in that they do all they can to keep out the Viet Cong so we will have no pretext for it," Sheinbaum said.

United States military men have repeatedly charged that Cambodia is an important sanctuary for the Reds in the Vietnam war, and maintain large bases there.

NECESSITY

Sheinbaum said there is no necessity for the United States to "walk a path of neutrality" between the United States and China. Cambodia is irritated that the United States fails to understand her fear of traditional enemies, the Thais and Vietnamese, he said.

Sheinbaum disagrees with the administration's central theory that China is bent on imperialist expansion. He said

McNamara bases the theory heavily on a blueprint statement by Peking defense minister Lin Paio supporting "wars of national liberation."

Sheinbaum accused McNamara of misrepresenting the Lin Paio statement. The Chinese leader actually wrote that China will back such revolutions, but will not send troops or substantial aid "and they will have to go it alone," Sheinbaum said.

SHEINBAUM SHIES FROM CANDIDACY

Stanley Sheinbaum has virtually ruled out any chance that he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congressman.

"I would only be a candidate with the support of local Democratic party leaders and members," Sheinbaum said. "They have expressed no interest, and I doubt if they would support anybody who opposes the President's policies."

Sheinbaum Sees Viet War Spread

The Vietnam war is likely to spread laterally into Thailand and Cambodia, Stanley K. Sheinbaum told a meeting at Stanford University Monday night.

He delivered another address on the Vietnam situation at the University of California at San Diego last night.

Monday he charged "The operating assumption in Washington is that confrontation with China is inevitable. Already in Thailand we have 15,000 troops, to be doubled by the end of the year and tripled within a year. The American public is being prepared also for the move on Cambodia."

Sheinbaum is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congressman from the 13th district.

Administration candidate now coos like a dove

SANTA BARBARA—"A fundamental principle of American foreign policy is not to use force unilaterally in foreign affairs. President Johnson, although his intentions are honorable, has departed from that principle more than once. He did so in Santo Domingo, in Stanleyville, in Vietnam."

That's what Charles A. Storke, picked by Administration Democrats to seek the party's nomination for Congress in the 13th District had to say in a campaign talk before the Young Democrats here Thursday, May 19.

Storke also said:

"The President committed the great power of the United States in Vietnam without sanction of the United Nations or our allies and without support of world public opinion."

Storke's position on Mr. Johnson's Vietnam policy was regarded as a gesture toward the growing peace sentiment in Santa Barbara and Ventura counties, which make up the 13th CD.

It is conceded that the battle for the Democratic nomination is between Storke and Stanley K. Sheinbaum, economist and former adviser to the South Vietnam government, who is the choice of the peace forces in the two counties. In fact Sheinbaum supporters complain there's danger of their man being lugged to death by the Administration candidate.

The race between Sheinbaum and Storke is rated as a toss-up but whatever the outcome, the Democratic primary in the 13th CD can hardly be interpreted as a hearty endorsement of President Johnson's policy in Vietnam.

Sheinbaum is on leave from the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions. Storke is a member of a pioneer Santa Barbara newspaper publishing family.

Fourteen Catholic, Protestant and Jewish clergymen in this area have issued a statement deploring the war in Vietnam, saying:

"We believe as long as there is war in Vietnam, there can be no permanent solution to the social, political and economic problems there."

Storke Wins Over Three Opponents

Charles A. Storke, making his first bid for the office, won the Democratic nomination for Congress in yesterday's primary. He will try to unseat veteran Rep. Charles M. Teague in November. Teague didn't encounter any threat from his primary opponent Walter Hintzen, aerospace engineer, and piled up his usual big Republican vote.

Storke, a rancher, businessman, and former newspaperman, led a field of four candidates in the Democratic primary, both in Santa Barbara County and in Ventura County.

One of the surprises of the congressional race was the strong showing made by Rae Richerson of Lompoc in Ventura County. He crowded out Stanley K. Sheinbaum of Santa Barbara for second position in that county.

Sheinbaum placed second in the four-way race in Santa Barbara County and ran up a sufficient vote to assure him of second place ranking in the district, but not enough to become a serious threat to Storke's nomination.

In a statement today, Storke said:

"I look forward with keen anticipation to the opportunity to speak out on the issues which are of concern to our nation, our state, and especially our two counties.

"From the beginning I have viewed my campaign as a call for more creative and vigorous congressional leadership in Ventura and Santa Barbara counties. Our goal in the coming campaign will be to awaken more people to the fact that they have a congressman who in his 12 years in office has done a commendable job for Santa Barbara and Ventura counties.

"I believe that our requirements for world leadership, our search for a solution to the Vietnam dilemma, our effort to insure that poverty, prejudice and discrimination are eliminated from our way of life, and our hope for ambitious national and local economic growth, demand strong congressional representation.

"To all the dedicated supporters of my campaign and to the many voters who have demonstrated their confidence in me, I express my sincere thanks. To the three Democrats who competed for the nomination, I extend my congratulations for a clean and forthright campaign. . . We begin the general election with a united Democratic party.

SHEINBAUM

Sheinbaum said after the results were in:

"When I entered the Democratic congressional primary I fully expected that my candidacy would attract the interest of greater numbers of people than usual. I felt that by hitting head-on the main issue facing our country—the disastrous war in Vietnam—I would be listened to, although perhaps not voted for. There is no doubt that the people in the United States are uneasy about the war and do not want to hear candidates blandly say they support the President's peace efforts, but . . .

"Our 13th District was unique in the country because two of the candidates, Mr. Storke and myself, stood as Mr. Storke put it, for substantially the same position on Vietnam. Naturally, I would have preferred to win, but I am delighted that I did. Our combined votes reflect an overwhelming desire by the electorate of this district to end the war in Vietnam. I believe that this people strength-ability domestically to press ever-harder for the peace.

"In this race I developed a greater respect for the democratic process. I had been warned not to run because my controversial position would subject myself and my family to much abuse. This never occurred . . . because my position was stated with clarity, reason, and depth; therefore, the so-called controversial position earned the respect of my audiences. I am grateful for having been listened to and heard out.

"I am also indebted to that multitude of volunteers, most of whom I had not known previously, who worked harder than myself for my candidacy.

"My three opponents helped make it the best race this area has enjoyed in years . . .

"The best man won. By doing so he refutes Leo Durocher. Nice guys can finish first. We Democrats finally have the right man to defeat the Republican incumbent because Mr. Storke is willing to confront the most serious matter facing us."

In a statement issued in Washington, Rep. Teague said he was appreciative "of the thousands of voters who had indicated their confidence in me by casting their votes for my reelection.

"We will need all the votes we can get in November and it is my hope that many of those who voted for Mr. Hintzen will find my political philosophy (which I call moderate conservatism) closer to their own views than that of my liberal Democratic opponent.

"However, I do not want the support of those comparatively few people who have been calling me a 'socialist,' 'communist,' 'quaker' or 'traitor'."

Peace unionists meet

LOS ANGELES — The combination of politics and peace last Friday proved to be a successful formula for the newly organized Trade Unionists for Peace.

Approximately 150 union members — including some elected officials — from 25 unions gathered at the Mayfair Hotel to honor candidates committed to peace campaigns. Four candidates for Congress, including incumbent Congressman George Brown, Jr. (D-29th) appeared before the overflow crowd at the reception.

Other congressional aspirants at the reception included Arthur Carstens (D-27th), Stanley Schminbaum (D-Santa Barbara, 13th C.D.) and Michael Hanlon (D-20th). Included among the peace candidates seeking Democratic assembly nomination were Farel Broslawsky, 57th, Myra Perez, 45th and Clifford McClain, 66th.

Many of the trade unionists present requested they be kept informed on the organization's future events and the continuation committee of the Trade Unionists for Peace is scheduled to meet later this month to plan further events for union members anxious to act in behalf of peace.

California dissidents at the crossroads

A sticky challenge

for 'new politics'

By AL RICHMOND

SAN FRANCISCO — The call has been issued for a statewide political conference that will seek to define an area of agreement on common policy and action in California by "new politics" forces and related groups — in 1966 and beyond.

The "Statewide Conference on Power and Politics," scheduled in Los Angeles, Sept. 30-Oct. 2, was initiated by Californians for Liberal Representation, but will be co-sponsored by various individuals. It will be open to all comers, whether or not they speak for organizations.

"California politics," says the call, "has been rocked by new forces and actions: the massive anti-war demonstrations, the farm workers' march, the dramatic showing of peace candidates in the California primaries, the Watts uprising, the Free Speech movements, the growth of welfare-rights groups and other grassroots organizations.

"These movement, along with liberal individuals in labor, civil rights, peace and other groups, challenge the power structure that runs California but has failed us so completely.

NEW FORCE

"The time has come for California's unrepresented people to unite into a powerful new force to bring the changes that are so desperately needed."

The call poses some questions, "On which issues do we judge our support of candidates?"

"Do we support Brown or Reagan for Governor -- or some alternative . . . ?"

"Should we concentrate on local issues this year?"

"What actions on a local level can we take now?"

"How do we prepare for 1967 or 1968?"

Other questions deal with organizational forms — coordination among existing groups? a new, independent membership organization? a federation of existing groups? a third party?

The very multiplicity of questions indicates the range of problems and choices before the "new politics" forces and other independent currents. This range is strikingly illustrated by a significant variety of political tactics that has emerged in several Congressional districts where "new-politics" candidates ran well in the June Democratic primaries.

VARIED MEANS

The varied pattern includes outright endorsement of the Democratic primary winner, a search for electoral expression that is not hinged to a candidate, or playing it cool to exercise maximum pressure on the Democratic nominee.

Here then is the picture in four districts, reading from South to North:

13th CD (Santa Barbara and Ventura counties): Right after the primary ballots were counted, Stanley R. Shulman, avowed peace candidate, threw his support to the primary winner, Charles A. Sore, against the five-term, conservative Republican incumbent, Charles M. Taylor.

Shulman is a director of Bay Area Magazine and an economist at the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions. He said that Sore's position on Vietnam is one of the "biggest reasons to treat the Republican nominee."

14th CD (San Diego County): In a primary, Robert K. Keating, Republican, lost to James R. Shivers, Democrat.

Teague Criticizes Opponent Over 'No Tax Payment' Ad

Sheinbaum Tells CC Candidates' Meeting He Sought Attention for Anti-War Ideas

By ALBERT KELLEY

A political bomb was dropped on Democratic congressional candidate Stanley Sheinbaum by incumbent GOP Congressman Charles M. Teague (R-1st District) at the meeting of the Woodland Hills

Chamber of Commerce this week when Teague showed Sheinbaum a copy of an advertisement in Rampart Magazine supposedly signed by Sheinbaum and others stating they would not pay the 10% income tax increase or any income tax "used to finance the war in Vietnam."

Putting L.A. feet from Teague at the speakers table, Sheinbaum admitted signing the refusal to pay the taxes in question and stated he did so to attract attention to the ideas he espouses.

His reply brought a quick rejoinder from Teague who said, "Is a man who breaks a federal law qualified to represent you? He is openly and brazenly breaking the law."

23% Figure Mentioned

A long list of writers and editors, according to the advertisement, stated the statement which stated that none of the signatories will voluntarily pay the 10% increase in income tax or any war-designated tax increase.

The statement at top of the ad goes on to say that many of the signers will not pay "that 23% of any current income tax which is being used to finance the war in Vietnam."

The advertisement appeared in a February issue of Rampart magazine, according to the photostatic copy displayed by Teague.

Blocking Charged

Teague's blast was the highlight of the meeting at which various political candidates had been invited to speak. In seeking his eighth term in Congress, the incumbent outlined his record which evoked a charge by Sheinbaum that Teague had never authored any major legislation.

His efforts to put through legislation, said Teague, especially in the law and order area had been consistently blocked by the Democratic administration.

Sheinbaum said he advocated a "creative federalism" and stated that Congress had surrendered its power to the administration and the legislators apparently won't oppose it.

By-Laws Change

He said it was his duty to talk about the Vietnam war and its quick termination. As to law and order he said that more education and training are needed by police.

The meeting was presided over by chamber president Larry J. Calimine who read two proposed by-laws changes:

* Any chamber director who is absent from one-third or more meetings (including special meetings) in a 30-day period shall be removed from the board.

L. J. Simons, chairman of the zoning committee, reported the committee opposing conditional use and possible zone variance on property at 22500 Victory Blvd., now zoned RA-1, for a fraternity house for Pierce College students.

A hearing on this matter is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 18, at 10 a.m. in American Legion clubhouse, 1541 Sylvan St., Van Nuys.

The committee also opposes an application for zone change from A-1 to C-1 at southwest corner of Topanga Canyon Blvd. and Oxford St. for construction of a service station.

Prizes Mentioned

This property is owned by the Boy Scouts as result of a donation. The hearing on this request was held Oct. 7 and the decision by the Planning Commission is due Nov. 8.

Calemine urges those who won prizes in the recent Fall Festival to contact the chamber and pick up the awards which consist of two television color sets and minor trophies.

Al-Harnon, chairman of the membership committee, proposed Fremont, Von's Grocery Co., Yeager's Coin Shop and Dr. Friedrich Danziger as applicants for membership. They were approved by the board.

Chamber Non-Partisan

Harnon announced that the chamber now has 277 members, an increase of 41 over 1957. A grant of $100 has been set, he stated, and to help accomplish this a special meeting of the board of directors will be held at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 21, after which reports will be made on the grant. The board will also prepare the 1958 report.

In introducing the political speakers, Calemine emphasized that the chamber was non-partisan. State Sen. Lou Cusanovich was unable to attend and Clarence Violette appeared for him.

He briefly outlined the Senator's record and defended him against charges that he did little to correct the smog situation.

Cusanovich voted in favor of the auto smog control device which now has been assured by manufacturers by March 1970, Violette said.

"Do-Nothing" Charge

Gerald Porter, Cusanovich's opponent, said that crime has reached epidemic proportions and that legislators should be more involved in the situation.

He charged that Cusanovich is a "do nothing" senator. Old and retired people are losing their homes, he stated, and opined that more federal help is needed in this area.

He charged the incumbent with dragging his feet on the smog bill and referred to him as "rubber stamp Cusanovich."

Assemblyman Pat McGee was absent in Sacramento and was represented by Allen Fitzgerald after McGee's opponent, Guy Raner, a school teacher, had criticized the incumbent's record.

Fitzgerald made a few brief remarks in rebuttal which were concluded with the remark to Raner "A good teacher is needed in the classroom." Raner made a plea for more average citizens from various businesses, and fewer lawyers, in the Legislature.

POLITICAL opponents in 13th Congressional District, incumbent GOP Congressman Charles M. Teague, left, and Stanley K. Sheinbaum argued differences at Woodland Hills Chamber of Commerce candidates meeting arranged to hear views of contestants.

[redacted] DANTEL ELLSBERG and ANTHONY RUSSO in the famous Pentagon Papers trial was contacted by SA [redacted]. He stated that the applicant figured prominently in the day to day trial activities in the Pentagon Papers trial. He explained that SHEINBAUM would appear in court nearly every day escorting visitors to their seats in the seats reserved for the defense. He learned that these visitors were contributors to the Legal Defense Fund of which SHEINBAUM was chairman. It appeared to him that the applicant was "selling tickets to a public trial".

b7D

[redacted] advised that because of the way in which the applicant was orchestrating the spectators seating for the trial and by his constant presence during the trial, he came to believe that SHEINBAUM was totally committed to the belief that what ELLSBERG and RUSSO had done in publishing classified government secrets was right.

[redacted] further stated that he was not personally acquainted with the applicant and only saw him during the trial and through others was made aware of his prominent influence in raising funds for the defendants' legal fees.

[redacted] advised that he believes that it would be a very serious mistake in view of SHEINBAUM's known attitude toward the government to grant him a ~~Top Secret~~ Clearance. [redacted] advised that he became aware of the identity of the applicant during the trial and SHEINBAUM was identified to him as the Chairman and Chief Fund Raiser in the defendants fund raising committee. He said that SHEINBAUM appeared in court very frequently and took an active part in managing the seating arrangements for spectators to the trial. A section of the courtroom was reserved for seats for the defense and for the prosecution. He indicated that it appeared to him [redacted]

[redacted] that SHEINBAUM was making available these seats to contributors to the legal defense fund. He said it looked to him as though SHEINBAUM was "selling tickets to a public trial".

[redacted] advised that as the trial progressed, he began to realize that ELLSBERG and RUSSO had actually committed an "act of revolution and rebellion against the government". [redacted] stated that many people who were against the war in Vietnam contributed support both financially and otherwise to the defendants as a way of expressing their resistance to the U.S. involvement in that war. He believed that many of these people did not see the other issues at the trial namely the violating of established law if such laws violated a persons conscience.

[redacted] believes that the applicant not only was against the war in Vietnam, but also believed in and supported the defendants in their "act of revolution and rebellion against the government" and did everything he could to support him. He said that it must be remembered that the defendants were not acquitted or found not guilty in the trial, but that the case was dismissed before a verdict could be rendered.

b6
b7D

[redacted] advised that he was never personally acquainted with SHEINBAUM, but because of the way he was an influence in the trial as one of the defendants' ardent supporters, he would raise a serious question as to whether SHEINBAUM would obey the law if he disagrees with it.

In this letter "Ramparts" described itself as follows: "The first national publication to consistently reveal the ribbon of lies supporting America's involvement in Vietnam; we stripped the curtain from America's invisible government by exposing [redacted] unlicensed intrusion into our domestic lives; we dared to write about the applications of the Catholic church's political power; we warned, years before the Kerner Report, that white racism was the base of America's racial problems; we blasted away at the corroded institutions of Cold War liberalism. "Ramparts" is now the largest left of center commercial magazine in the history of the United States". In the November 1972 issue of "Ramparts" magazine, STANLEY K. The article follows below:

Sheinbaum Slates Hearing Testimony

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Stanley Sheinbaum, Santa Barbara economist, is going to Lansing, Mich., Monday to testify on his charges that Michigan State University let itself be used as a cover for CIA agents in Vietnam.

Sheinbaum, one of three writers of an article in Ramparts magazine that touched off a national controversy, is scheduled to appear before a Michigan House of Representatives committee.

He said here today he will repeat his accusations that MSU improperly functioned as a tool of a secret government agency. He has charged that the MSU-CIA liaison simply illustrates that the country's universities are selling out their independence for government contracts.

SLATE PROTEST

Despite his part in the nationwide argument over the role of a university, Sheinbaum said he will protest the Michigan hearing.

"Even though I disapprove of the university's conduct I will protest the legislative investigation as an unwarranted intrusion upon the independence of the university," he said. "Recent irresponsible attacks on the University of California by the state Senate, subcommittee on Un-American Activities provide ample evidence that legislative intrusion is detrimental to the health of a university."

Sheinbaum, on leave from the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions to campaign for the Democratic nomination for Congress, was coordinator of the $100 Vietnam aid project from 1954 to 1959.

DETAILS:

EMPLOYMENT

The following investigation was conducted by SA [redacted] at East Lansing, Michigan:

b7c

On January 16, 1978, [redacted] Michigan State University (MSU), East Lansing, Michigan, advised he worked with applicant on the MSU Vietnam Project during the middle and late 1950s, and although he has had little contact with applicant since, he considers applicant as an acquaintance. [redacted] advised applicant left MSU and later disclosed the project in an article which appeared in Rampart magazine, which alienated some participants of the project. [redacted] advised he recalls shortly after the Rampart magazine publication, several MSU faculty members were called before a hearing by the Michigan House of Representatives regarding the project.

[redacted] advised he has no reservations regarding applicant's character, honesty, trustworthiness, morals, or loyalty to the United States. [redacted] advised he recommended applicant for a position of trust and security with the United States Government and that applicant be granted access to highly sensitive material and information as a University of California regent; however, such recommendation is "with a calculated risk". [redacted] advised that he recommended the applicant "with a calculated risk" because ninety percent (90%) of the time the applicant could be expected to follow classification guidelines. [redacted] advised if, however, applicant believed strongly enough that a situation or issue was seriously in opposition to his principles, applicant might possibly disregard security classifications. [redacted] advised applicant is of the nature to question issues; however, he believes applicant has matured beyond the actions applicant took regarding the Rampart magazine article to the point applicant would take a different approach if applicant was to reveal a classified issue in the future.

Between January 13, 1978, and January 18, 1978, unsuccessful attempts were made to contact Dr. JOHN A. HANNAH, President Emeritus, MSU; residence, Danesville, Michigan, telephone number 1-517-623-6100, regarding applicant.

Mr. STANLEY SHEINBAUM served as a contributing editor for "Ramparts Magazine," a magazine associated with leftist groups, located in Berkeley, California. It was the opinion of WF T-1 that SHEINBAUM, if given a Top Security clearance and allowed to examine secure documents, could perhaps, out of dedication to his profession or ignorance, allow an exchange of valuable information, some of which might relate to this country's security.

DR. JOHN HANNAH, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, WORLD FOOD COUNCIL, WAS INTERVIEWED ON FEBRUARY 24, 1978 IN ROME, ITALY.

AT THE OUTSET OF THE INTERVIEW, DR. HANNAH ADVISED HE HAD NO OBJECTION TO MAKING A MATTER OF RECORD HIS VIEWS AND RECOMMENDATIONS REGARDING MR. DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY - APPLICANT

Synopsis:

Applicant interviewed on 2/28/78 at the Los Angeles FBI office. He provided information concerning his activities during the years 1936 to 1939, as set forth below. SHEINBAUM also commented as to what he might do in the event he would come into confidential, classified, secret information as a Regent of the University of California which might conflict with his conscience.

- RUC -

DETAILS:EMPLOYMENT

On February 28, 1978, SA [REDACTED] telephonically contacted the applicant, STANLEY K. SHEINBAUM, at his home, 240 Bentley Circle, Los Angeles, California. Mr. SHEINBAUM was advised that the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) wished to interview him concerning his background investigation for a secret clearance in connection with his position on the Board of Regents of the University of California. Mr. SHEINBAUM advised that he was about to leave the house to do some errands in the area of the FBI office and volunteered to come into the FBI office to discuss this matter with SA [REDACTED]

Accordingly, at about 3 p.m., February 28, 1978, Mr. SHEINBAUM appeared at the FBI, Los Angeles, office and was interviewed by SA [redacted] and SA [redacted]
[redacted]

b7c

Mr. SHEINBAUM advised that he graduated from high school in New York City in June, 1936, and, afterwards, worked for a time for his father who owned a garment factory in New York City. He said that he also worked in a part-time capacity for his father at the factory operating the sewing machines, leather cutters, and also functioned as a delivery boy for him. He stated that his father went out of business in about 1937 or 1938 and for several periods between 1936 and 1939, he was unemployed. He explained that this was in the middle of the Depression years when there were many people unemployed.

Mr. SHEINBAUM said that he had some part-time, periodic employment with various businesses but is unable to recall the names or addresses to these businesses.

He did recall, however, that he worked as a demonstrator for a toy manufacturer during the Christmas season, 1938, at the Abraham and Straus Department Store in Brooklyn, New York.

He also stated that in June, 1939, he worked as a stage hand in a Broadway production which lasted about nine or ten months, which brought him an opportunity to work for the Saxon-Offset Litho Corporation where he worked for some time. He explained that his activities as a stage hand was evening work, while his work as a printer for the Litho Corporation was daytime employment. He stated that after working for Litho for some time, he obtained employment in early 1941 in Houston, Texas, and moved to that location.

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

Date of transcription 3/2/78

On February 28, 1978, STANLEY K. SHEINBAUM voluntarily appeared at the Los Angeles Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) office to discuss certain aspects of the background investigation being conducted by the FBI for and in behalf of the Department of Energy. He was advised of the identity of the interviewing Agents.

SA [redacted] pointed out to Mr. SHEINBAUM that it was public knowledge that he was the Chairman of the Pentagon Papers Fund, which raised money for the legal defense for the two defendants in the famous Pentagon Papers Trial which was held in Los Angeles, California. Mr. SHEINBAUM acknowledged the fact that he was indeed the Chairman of this Fund-Raising Committee and was very much dedicated to the cause that was represented by the defendants (DANIEL ELLSBERG and ANTHONY RUSSO) in the trial.

b7c

Mr. SHEINBAUM was asked if he might find himself in a moral dilemma, if, as a Regent of the University of California, he came in possession of ~~top secret~~, classified information about the atomic research being conducted on the campuses of the University of California that conflicted with his conscience. After Mr. SHEINBAUM pondered for a moment, he indicated that his answer to this question might very well "blow the whole investigation," as it relates to this ~~top secret~~ clearance. Thinking for a moment, Mr. SHEINBAUM related that recently he and his wife were at home watching a television movie of the atrocities committed against the Jewish people by the Nazi government during World War II. He stated that he, of course, was Jewish and was extremely sensitive to the crimes committed by that government during those years. He stated that if he came across information as a Regent of the University, that the United States Government was carrying on research which would be of a nature that would create a potential or likely threat to the freedom or well being of any particular group of people in this country, he would, of course, "stand up and be counted," meaning that he would make it known to whomever he felt it necessary.

Interviewed on 2/28/78 at Los Angeles, California File # Los Angeles 116-73933
 by SAs [redacted] [redacted] WDR/iso Date dictated 3/2/78

b6

-4-

SA [] then pointed out that he also was revolted by the acts of violence and torture and death carried out by the Nazis during World War II and feels as strongly about this as anyone else, and would also feel that it would be a moral responsibility to prevent any such thing from happening in this country. SA [] indicated, however, that there are many countries in the world who would be very interested in obtaining the results of the research carried on by the University of California in the area of nuclear research and thereby save themselves the time and effort to conduct their own research in this field. Mr. SHEINBAUM was then asked if he felt he would be faced with a moral dilemma if any of this kind of classified information conflicted with his conscience, would he be inclined to reveal it to unauthorized individuals.

Mr. SHEINBAUM quickly responded that he would never act in such a way as to give the enemies of the United States "any leg up" or advantage by revealing any classified information that he might come into possession of as a Regent of the University of California. He further indicated that he frankly does not believe that he would be privy to any such kind of information in such detail, and probably would not understand a lot of the scientific information anyway.

It is noted that Mr. SHEINBAUM was dressed in business attire, wearing a full beard. During the interview, he seemed highly nervous, glancing at the ceiling and floor, and rubbing his hands together as he gathered his thoughts before speaking. The interview was conducted in an atmosphere of cordiality and was free of any tension or hostility. At the conclusion of the interview, Mr. SHEINBAUM stated that he anticipated that the questioning would be "tough" but realized that the FBI has a responsibility to investigate matters such as this.

Dr. John Hannah, Executive Director, World Food Council, Rome, Italy, advised he recalls Mr. Sheinbaum only vaguely. He said Mr. Sheinbaum was on the Michigan State University (MSU) staff during the mid 1960s when Dr. Hannah was president at the same university. He stated it was during this same period that a United States Government subsidized Vietnam project was in progress at MSU. Dr. Hannah said he recalls that Mr. Sheinbaum was on the faculty with no tenure either in the Political Science or History Department. He stated in this capacity, Sheinbaum would not have had direct access to any information regarding the Vietnam project. He stated, however, it was Mr. Sheinbaum who wrote an article for Ramparts Magazine in about 1966 in which he alleged that the project was a [redacted] operation. He said these allegations and resultant publicity led ultimately to the shutting down of the project. Dr. Hannah commented that it was never proven that this project was a "cover" for the [redacted] FBI or any other intelligence agency.

b7E

Dr. Hannah stated he recalls that Mr. Sheinbaum left the university thereafter in apparent disappointment over not being promoted. He said he has had no contact with Mr. Sheinbaum since that time. Dr. Hannah stated that based upon the above incident, he considers Mr. Sheinbaum irresponsible, untruthful and dishonest in making these allegations. He stated he would not recommend Mr. Sheinbaum for any employment or position of trust where Mr. Sheinbaum would have access to classified data.

Item 15) Foreign countries I have visited a.) This is very complicated for me to answer in the specific especially if dates are required. For example, every summer Mrs. Sheinbaum and I visit our home in Giglio for two to four weeks. There is no regularity in dates.

STANLEY K. SHEINBAUM

b.) In November 1993 I visited Syria (11/23-25), Jordan (11/25-27), and Israel (11/27).

c.) February 12 & 13, 1993 I attended a conference of the "Intellectuals of the World" at UNESCO in Paris followed immediately by a meeting of the Conference of Asian and African Writers in Cairo.

d.) In November and December of 1988 I met with Yasser Arafat in Stockholm. There have been two visits to Tunis and Cairo for journalistic interviews with him.

e.) From January 5th through 7th, 1986 I attended a conference in Ixtapa, Mexico sponsored Parliamentarians for Global Action/Five Continents Peace Initiative, and a similar one in 1990 in Stockholm.

f.) In January 1986 I visited Brazil, Argentina and Peru for pleasure.

g.) Over the past fifteen years there have been four or five visits each to Paris and London for pleasure.

STANLEY K. SHEINBAUM

h.) Over the past 25 years there have been a number of one or two day trips to Geneva and Zurich to consult with my investment counselors there.

i.) There have also been a series of visits to Greece to see personal friends and for interviews for my journal, New Perspectives Quarterly.

j.) Since 1961 I have visited Israel ten or twelve times.

Obviously if more precision is required I will attempt to ferret out what is needed--but because I will be traveling I will need more time.

Agency Checks

Records of the California Fair Political Practices Commission revealed that on June 10, 1992, the Commission opened a file against Mr. Sheinbaum based upon a conflict of interest complaint. (The identity of the complainant cannot be divulged under California law.) The complaint alleged that Mr. Sheinbaum, while president of the Los Angeles Police Commission, made a contribution to Mayor Tom Bradley's campaign for Mayor of Los Angeles. Mr. Sheinbaum was the subject of background investigations (BIs) completed by the FBI in 1978 and 1983 in connection with his former position as a member of the Board of Regents at the University of California. (This position required security clearance by the Department of Energy.) During the course of the 1978 BI, individuals familiar with Mr. Sheinbaum's employment at Michigan State University (MSU) advised that after Mr. Sheinbaum's departure from MSU, he wrote an article for Rampart magazine about a United States Government subsidized Vietnam project ongoing at MSU. (From 1957 to 1960, Mr. Sheinbaum served as coordinator of the project.) Mr. Sheinbaum alleged that the project was an operation of the [redacted] Because of his allegations and the resultant publicity, the project was ended. Because of Mr. Sheinbaum's disclosure of information, three of these individuals would not recommend him for a position of trust and one recommended "with calculated risk." Individuals interviewed also commented that after Mr. Sheinbaum left MSU, he became involved in the anti-Vietnam movement and was Chairman of the Legal Fund Raising Committee for the defendants in the "Pentagon Papers" trial. Two individuals familiar with Mr. Sheinbaum through the trial advised they would not recommend Mr. Sheinbaum. Another individual familiar with Mr. Sheinbaum during his unsuccessful 1966 campaign for Congress would not recommend him because of a belief that Mr. Sheinbaum, either out of ignorance or dedication to his profession, would allow an exchange of information, thus not making him trustworthy. Mr. Sheinbaum was asked about his ability to maintain classified or confidential information that may conflict with his conscience due to the comments made by interviewees. Mr. Sheinbaum advised that if he were to come across information which would be of a nature that would create a potential or likely threat to the freedom or well being of any group of people in this country, he would "stand up and be counted," meaning he would make it known to whomever he

Other references in FBI files related to Mr. Sheinbaum's opposition to the Vietnam War, his serving as Chairman of the Legal Fund Raising Committee, and in connection with his contacts with foreign nationals.

It should be noted that results of the above indices searches reveal only data entered into those indices as of the date each was searched. However, it should also be noted that some delays may occur as to the entry of such data.

The information in this summary memorandum supplements the information contained in summary memoranda dated February 22 and 24, 1994, and August 17, 1994. It summarizes the results of an interview of Mr. Sheinbaum which was conducted by the FBI during the course of a 1978 background investigation.

Miscellaneous

As previously reported, Mr. Sheinbaum was the subject of a background investigation conducted by the FBI in 1978 at the request of the Department of Energy. During that investigation, it was reported that Mr. Sheinbaum had disclosed classified information to which he had access in a published article. His purported purpose in writing the article was to protest the loss of academic freedom through the use of universities as an arm of the United States government. The FBI interviewed Mr. Sheinbaum concerning this matter and his treatment of classified material on February 28, 1978.

Mr. Sheinbaum was asked what he would do if, in the course of carrying out his professional responsibilities, he came into the possession of classified information that conflicted with his beliefs. After some hesitation, Mr. Sheinbaum stated that his answer might well "blow the whole investigation" as it related to a decision to grant him access to ~~top secret~~ information. He then explained that if he came across information that the United States was carrying on research that could pose a potential or likely threat to the freedom or well being of any particular group of people, he would have to "stand up and be counted." He stated he believed he would have to make the information known as he believed necessary. He compared his actions to those of someone attempting to prevent the atrocities committed by the Nazis against the Jewish people during World War II.

Mr. Sheinbaum was then specifically asked if he would reveal to other countries any information concerning the results of nuclear research being conducted by the United States. Mr. Sheinbaum immediately stated that he would never act in such a way that would give any enemies of the United States "any leg up" or advantage by divulging information he learned in the course of carrying out his professional responsibilities. He added he really did not think he would ever come into possession of such information and probably would not understand it if he did come into possession of it.

Agency Checks

Mr. Sheinbaum was the subject of a background investigation conducted by the FBI in 1978 at the request of the Department of Energy. During that investigation, a number of individuals commented on Mr. Sheinbaum's treatment of classified material. These individuals stated that Mr. Sheinbaum had written an article for publication which alleged that the [redacted] had used a university project with which Mr. Sheinbaum had been involved as a front. He used classified information he had access to while working with the project in this article. His purported purpose in writing the article was to protest the loss of academic freedom through the use of universities as an arm of the state. These individuals characterized Mr. Sheinbaum variously as being ignorant of classification, self righteous to the point of placing his own judgement over that of the government as concerns the importance of classification, being a zealot and holding beliefs so strong that he would possibly ignore security precautions. The FBI asked Mr. Sheinbaum how he would react if he had access to classified material that indicated the United States government was acting in a manner which was contrary to his beliefs. Mr. Sheinbaum stated he would have to make this information known, but further indicated he would not do so in such a way as to give advantage to any enemy of the United States.

The university on the make

Introduction

DURING THE SUMMER OF 1958, I cut my vacation short and rushed off to San Francisco to meet the four leading police figures of South Vietnam. Among them they controlled the Saigon police, the national police and the VBI, South Vietnam's equivalent of the FBI.

Within an hour of their arrival the youngest, a nephew of Ngo Dinh Diem, conspiratorially drew me aside and informed me that one of the others was going to kill the eldest of the group. The story he told possessed plot and counter-plot. In essence, Michigan State University was being used to invite these men to the United States under the auspices of its foreign aid contract in Vietnam. The dirty deed was to be done prophylactically in the States, uncluttered by any complicating factors in Saigon.

At a time when relations between Diem and the U.S. were already strained, the whole story might have been a trick to embarrass Washington. Or else my informant's facts could have been straight, and failure to take action would have been equally embarrassing. The upshot was some nocturnal maneuvers and a cross-country flight designed to separate the quartet by forcibly hospitalizing the supposed target on the pretext he showed signs of T.B.

Nothing ever came of the episode. The intended target lived long enough to be executed by Diem's successors for having assassinated a variety of political prisoners himself.

The question is, why was I, of the Department of Economics at MSU, involved in such ugliness?

I was coordinator of the Vietnam Project at Michigan State University, and I am no less culpable of the charges I make herein, or are made in the following article, than are any of my former colleagues. Looking back I am appalled how supposed intellectuals (Aren't academicians supposed to be intellectuals?) could have been so uncritical about what they were doing. There was little discussion and no protest over the cancellation of the 1956 elections. Nor were any of us significantly troubled by the fact that our Project had become a CIA front. (The University is still denying this in an odd mixture of embarrassment and loyalty.) On the campus a pitiful handful of faculty—usually mavericks and among the best teachers—questioned MSU's role in assisting U.S. foreign policy. (One of these became an enthusiast when the opportunity arose for him to make a leisurely trip to Saigon on behalf of the Project.) From Saigon some professors did write popular and troublesome articles criticizing Diem's oppressions. Good, but even these bold ventures accepted U.S. policy as given with no questions asked.

The Michigan State professors performed at all levels. They advised on fingerprinting techniques, on bookkeeping, on governmental budgeting and on the very writing of South Vietnam's constitution. One was even instrumental in the choice of the President of South Vietnam. But in all this they never questioned U.S. foreign policy which had placed them there and which, thereby, they were supporting.

The following article on MSU's involvement in Vietnam is merely a case study of two critical failures in American education and intellectual life today. The first and more obvious is the diversion of the university away from its functions (and duties) of scholarship and teaching. The second has to do with the failure of the academic intellectual to serve as critic, conscience, ombudsman. Especially in foreign policy, which henceforth will bear heavily on our very way of life at home, is this failure serious.

For this failure has left us in a state of drift. We lack historical perspective. We have been conditioned by our social science training not to ask the normative question; we possess neither the inclination nor the means with which to question and judge our foreign policy. We have only the capacity to be experts and technicians to serve that policy. This is the tragedy of the Michigan State professors: we were all automatic cold warriors.

On every campus from Harvard to Michigan State, the story is the same. The social science professor, trained (not educated) to avoid the bigger problems, is off campus expertising for his government or industry client whose assumptions he readily adopts. His students are mechanically led through the same social science materials by a less competent instructor or graduate assistant, and they will be as little exposed to questions of judgment and the application of wisdom as was the professor in the first place.

No doubt the problem is far more advanced at parvenu institutions like Michigan State than in the Ivy League. The struggle for status, recognition and money is an irresistible lure; the glamorous project is grabbed and sometimes even invented. Within the university only the exceptional faculty member seeks reward and promotions via scholarship and teaching. The easier and even the more prestigious route, is that of the new breed professor with his machine-stamped PhD who orbits in the university's stratosphere of institutes, projects and contracts. The student is lowest among his priorities. The work he emphasizes is of dubious value—by reason of his bias against considerations of value.

Where is the source of serious intellectual criticism that would help us avoid future Vietnams? Serious ideological controversy is dead and with it the perspective for judgment. Our failure in Vietnam was not one of technical expertise, but rather of historical wisdom. We at Michigan State failed to take a critical stance a decade ago. This was our first responsibility, and our incapacity gave rise to the nightmare described in the following pages.

—Stanley K. Sheinbaum

THE VIETNAMESE SOLDIER in the sentry box stood at attention as the chauffeured limousine bearing license plate No. 1 from the government motor pool roared down the long driveway of the French villa, picked up speed and screeched off along the road towards the palace where the President was waiting breakfast.

The year was 1957, the city was Saigon, and the man who lived in the huge villa with its own sentry box was no Batman of the diplomatic corps. He was only Wesley Fishel of East Lansing, Michigan, assistant professor of political science at Michigan State University.

Peasants who scrambled off the road to make way for the speeding professor might have wondered what was happening, but Fishel's academic compatriots could have no doubt: he was "making it." To make it, in the new world of Big University politics, was no longer as elemental as publishing or perishing. You needed "contact" with the outside world. You had to get a government contract. You had to be an operator. And some people viewed Professor Fishel in South Vietnam in the mid 1950s as the Biggest Operator of them all.

Some professors on the make have had a bigger press, but none deserves notoriety more than Wesley Fishel. Eugene Burdick, for instance, got a lot of publicity out of his quickie novels and underwater beer commercials on television. But no academician has ever achieved Fishel's distinction in getting his school to come through with enough professors, police experts and guns to secure his friend's dictatorship.

That was what Wesley Fishel was about on that humid Saigon morning, burning rubber to visit Ngo Dinh Diem. The presidential palace was known informally and with some degree of jealousy by the United States Mission in Saigon as the "breakfast club," because that was where Diem and Fishel and Wolf Ladejinsky, the agricultural expert left over from the New Deal, ate morning melons several times a week and discussed the state of the nation.

Leland Barrows, the United States Mission chief, was disturbed because he couldn't get to see Diem anywhere near that often. And Fishel was particularly closed-mouthed about his regular morning conferences. Saigon in the early days of the Diem regime was a status-minded city, and Fishel had a bigger villa than Barrows, bigger, even, than the American ambassador's. This residential ranking attests to Fishel's importance as head of the Michigan State University Group in Vietnam, an official university project under contract to Saigon and Washington, with responsibility for the proper functioning of Diem's civil service and his police network, the shaping up of the 50,000 man "ragamuffin" militia, and the supplying of guns and ammunition for the city police, the civil guard, the palace police, and the dreaded Sûreté — South Vietnam's version of the FBI. No small task for a group of professors, but one which Michigan State took to as if it were fielding another national championship football team.

One lesser-known, and perhaps more unpleasant task of the MSU professors was to provide a front for a unit of the United States Central Intelligence Agency. This is a role that both Professor Fishel and Michigan State University have now chosen to forget. It is described here as a specific, if shocking, documentation of the degree of corruption and abject immorality attending a university which puts its academic respectability on lend-lease to American foreign policy.

[JOHN A. HANNAH, THE PRESIDENT AS COACH]

THE DECAY OF TRADITIONAL academic principles found in the modern university on the make may well be traced to Harold Stassen and Clark Kerr, but it is best exemplified by President John A. Hannah of Michigan State University. Stassen, in the International Cooperation Administration, was responsible for the concept that American universities should be tapped as "manpower reservoirs" for the extension of Americanism abroad, and Clark Kerr, the embattled Berkeley savant, first came up with the vision of the large university as a "service station" to society. Hannah, an Eisenhower liberal with a penchant for public service, has made these concepts the raison d'être of MSU.

Hannah, in a blustery way, represents the best traditions of the American Success Story. The son of an Iowa chicken farmer, he took a degree in poultry husbandry from Michigan Agricultural College in 1922. Then, like the football hero who works for 30 years in the college bookstore because he can't bear to leave the campus, Hannah stayed on in East Lansing. He taught chicken farming, married the president's daughter, got his first taste of public service during a stint with the Department of Agriculture as an NRA administrator, came back to campus and in 1941 succeeded his father-in-law as president.

MSU, under President Hannah's tutelage, is more service oriented than the average Standard Oil retail outlet. MSU's School of Agriculture aids farmers, its School of Hotel Management turns out educated room clerks, its School of Police Administration graduates cops sophisticated in the social sciences. MSU once offered a Bachelor of Science degree with a major in Mobile Homes under a program financed by the trailer industry.

BUT IT IS IN THE FIELD of international service that Michigan State has really made it. A shiny new building on campus houses MSU's Center for International Programs — an edifice built, incidentally, with funds from the administrative allowance on the seven-year Vietnam contract. The University has over 200 faculty members out every year in the boondocks of the world running "educational projects" in 13 countries including Colombia, Taiwan, Turkey, Brazil and Okinawa. Time magazine recently acknowledged the MSU president's extensive influence on the role of American universities overseas by recording Hannah's boast that he can "tap his campus specialists, get an answer to most any question for government or research groups within 30 minutes." Now that is service.

The list of countries MSU is presently "helping" is lopsided with military dictatorships, but it is not President Hannah's style to question the assignment his country gives him. A former Assistant Secretary of Defense under General Motor's Charles Wilson, Hannah sees the military, like football, as an important character-building element in life. His view of the modern university is tied to the liberal concept of America as the defender of the free world. That the university must prepare young citizens to assume this proud task, and to be a leader abroad in areas chosen for it by the Federal government, is Hannah's educational credo.

Despite Hannah's obvious pride in the work his university is doing overseas, he is particularly reticent in discussing its most extensive foreign operation. In a colorful brochure about MSU's international programs, given away free to visitors, there is only one sentence about the Vietnam Project — despite the fact that this was the largest single project ever undertaken by an American university abroad, a project that spent the incredible amount of 25 million in American taxpayers' dollars in giving "technical assistance" to the Republic of South Vietnam under Ngo Dinh Diem. This one-sentence treatment of MSU's Vietnam operation is like reducing to a photo caption in the school yearbook the story of the prize-winning basketball team — because the coach was caught taking bribes.

A key to MSU's apparent official desire to forget about the Vietnam experience, dubbed the "Vietnam Adventure" by some professors who worked on the Project, might be found in the unexpressed fear that the details of the University's "cover" for the CIA may become public knowledge. If pressed for an answer, Fishel denies any such role and so does President Hannah. "CIA agents were not knowingly on our staff — if that were true we didn't know about it," Hannah said recently in his office, sitting beneath the portrait of Lincoln that hangs above his desk. But this assertion of innocence is flatly contradicted by the disclosures of other professors who held administrative positions in the Project. Indeed, the weight of evidence is that MSU finally had to ask the CIA unit to go elsewhere because its presence had become such embarrassing general knowledge in Saigon and East Lansing.

Economist Stanley K. Sheinbaum, the campus coordinator of MSU's Vietnam operation for three years, was flabbergasted by Hannah's denial: "If John Hannah can make up something like that, he calls into question his competence as a university president," he said.

[WESLEY FISHEL, THE PROFESSOR AS PROCONSUL]

ONE INDICATION OF WESLEY FISHEL'S power in Saigon in the hey-day of the Diem era was provided by a veteran of that period who recently paid a return visit to Saigon. "I heard people talking about what 'Westy' would think," he said, "and for a minute I thought that Wesley was back."

"Westy," in the Saigon vernacular, is General William Westmoreland, but those in the know used to talk about "Wesley" in the same awe-struck fashion. There is one public reminder of the transfer of power. "Westy" is now running the war out of the same office building, a recon-verted apartment house at 137 Pasteur Street, that used to be "Wesley's" headquarters.

Like most fateful alliances, the Diem-Fishel axis had humble beginnings. The pair met in Tokyo in July of 1950 when each was going nowhere in his chosen field. Diem was an exiled Vietnamese politician with a mandarin personality and a strong sense of predestination but few tangible hopes of assuming power in his war-ravaged country. Fishel was just a run-of-the-mill academician, a young political scientist from UCLA who had written a non-descript thesis on Chinese extra-territoriality and was about to accept a position at Michigan State.

Both were ambitious, looking for an angle, and Napoleon-sized. Diem was 5' 4"; Fishel, a well-built, curly-haired man with the stance of a bantam rooster, appears to be about the same size. The men became friends and a relationship developed by extensive correspondence over the ensuing year. They exchanged favors early. Fishel had his friend appointed consultant to Michigan State's Governmental Research Bureau and helped arrange a long stay in the United States where Diem picked up substantial backing among prominent Americans from Cardinal Spellman to Senator Mike Mansfield (Ramparts, July 1965). In return Diem in 1952 asked the French to let Michigan State furnish technical aid to Vietnam at United States expense, but the French refused.

FISHEL, HOWEVER, HAD ULTIMATE FAITH. An East Lansing colleague recalls that one day Fishel cornered him in the faculty lounge and, with the exuberance of one who could no longer restrain himself, whispered excitedly, "My friend Diem is going to be Premier of Vietnam one of these days!" The prediction was taken lightly; Fishel had neither the swagger nor the stripes of a kingmaker.

But when Diem was named Premier in July 1954, almost his first official act was to request Washington to send Wesley to Saigon to advise him. Fishel arrived within weeks, and just weeks later Diem asked for the second time that MSU set up a technical assistance program in Vietnam. The request, this time, had smooth sailing.

With Fishel already in Saigon, there was virtually no one on the East Lansing campus with any knowledge about Vietnam when Diem's assistance request was relayed through official Washington channels. President Hannah, not one to let the possibility of a substantial contract go by, tapped four faculty members for an "inspection team" and put them on a plane to Saigon in almost whirlwind fashion.

The four were Arthur Brandstatter, an ex-MSU football hero who now heads the Police Administration School; James Dennison, the University's public relations man; Edward Weidener, then chairman of the Political Science Department; and Economics Department Chairman

Charles Killingsworth. None of these men had any experience in academic or technical assistance roles overseas, nor did they have any expertise in Far Eastern affairs, a deficiency they attempted to repair by reading newspaper clippings on Vietnam during the plane ride. The first time they met as a group was when they fastened their seat belts.

Saigon was a city in ferment in September 1954, when MSU's "inspection team" arrived. Diem was nominally in power, but he had no real support except among a small number of middle-class Catholics and Saigon merchants. The French were preparing to pull out, the Saigon police were controlled by the Binh Xuyen pirate sect, the private armies of the religious sects were in substantial control of the Vietnamese lowlands, the Vietnamese Army was in fledgling revolt against Diem, and the civil service machinery was in a state of stagnation.

The professors found their colleague Fishel and General Edward Lansdale of the CIA maneuvering furiously to consolidate Diem's support, an effort that culminated with the endorsement of Diem by the United States Security Council in the spring of 1955. The professors also learned that Diem was suspicious of the members of the United States Mission in Saigon, many of whom he felt held pro-French sentiments. The one American Diem really trusted was Wesley Fishel, and this trust was reflected two weeks later when the MSU inspection team returned to East Lansing and recommended a massive technical assistance contract, unprecedented in the history of university operations overseas. This contract committed Michigan State to do everything for Diem, from training his police to writing his constitution.

Contract negotiations bogged down over technical matters, but the jam was broken in the early spring of 1955 by a telephone call from Washington to Hannah requesting that the red tape be cut and MSU involve itself in Vietnam — in a hurry. Fishel once indicated in an interview that the request came from former vice-president Nixon, but he now denies this, and so does President Hannah. The phone call, Hannah told the Detroit News, came from an authority "even higher than Nixon." This leaves a choice of John Foster Dulles; his brother, CIA chief Allen Dulles; or Eisenhower himself. At any rate, President Hannah did his duty as he saw it. The first MSU professors joined Wesley Fishel in Saigon in late May of 1955.

IN 1956 FISHEL ABANDONED his role as "advisor" to Diem, and assumed the title of Chief of Mission of the MSU Group. For the next four years, he was the most important American in Vietnam. "Wesley was the closest thing to a proconsul that Saigon had," said one of the MSU professors. The assistant professor of political science entertained frequently and lavishly in his opulent villa, and if his parties got a little out of hand the Saigon police obliged by cordoning off the street. No professor has ever made it so big; in the academic world, Fishel was sovereign.

But if the proconsul lived well, so did his lieutenants. East Lansing is hardly a midwestern Paris, and for most of the professors the more exotic and free-wheeling life in Saigon was the closest thing to the high life they had known. Academicians and their families, at first a little uncomfortable, assumed the easy ways of the former French colonial masters. They moved into spacious, air-conditioned villas, rent-free, in the old French section of Saigon, bought the better scotches at the American commissary at $2 a bottle, hired servants at $30 a month, were invited to all the better cocktail parties because they knew "Wesley," went tiger hunting for laughs, and, with various "hardship" and "incentive" salary hikes, made close to double their normal salaries. (A professor earning $9,000 for teaching class at East Lansing got $16,500 a year for "advising" in Vietnam — taxfree.)

The "Vietnam Adventure" also did wonders for the professors' tenure. Despite the activist nature of their work in Vietnam and the lack of any substantial scholarly research during the Project, two-thirds of the MSU faculty who went to Saigon got promotions either during their tour of duty or within a year of their return. Professor Fishel, in particular, scored points. His published work was virtually non-existent and he was absent from his classes for years at a time. But, in 1957, MSU promoted him to the rank of full professor.

[HEAR-NO-CIA, SEE-NO-CIA]

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY MEN were hidden within the ranks of the Michigan State University professors. They were all listed as members of the MSU Project staff and were formally appointed by the University Board of Trustees. Several of the CIA men were given academic rank and were paid by the University Project.

The CIA agents' instructions were to engage in counter-espionage and counter-intelligence. Their "cover" was within the police administration division of the Michigan State Group. The CIA unit was self-contained, and appeared on an official organization chart of the MSU Project as "VBI INTERNAL SECURITY SECTION." This five-man team was the largest section within the police administration division of the MSU Vietnam operation. The police administration division in turn was by far the largest of the three divisions of the MSU Group.

"VBI" was Michigan State shorthand for "Vietnamese Bureau of Investigation," the new name the professors had given the old Sûreté, the Vietnamese special police. The head of the "Internal Security Section" of the VBI under the Michigan State operation was Raymond Babineau who was in Saigon from the outset of the MSU Project. The other men were hired later by the University and listed on its staff chart as "Police Administration Specialists." All four — Douglas Beed, William Jones, Daniel Smith, and Arthur Stein — gave their previous employment as either "investigator" or "records specialist" in the Department of the Army.

THE CIA CONTINGENT, despite the continued denials of Fishel and Hannah, was identified by two former Project officials — Stanley Sheinbaum and Professor Robert Scigliano, an MSU political scientist who was assistant Project chief of the MSU Vietnam Group from 1957-1959. It is also confirmed, in writing, by Scigliano and Professor Guy H. Fox, a former MSU Project chief, in a book titled Technical Assistance in Vietnam: The Michigan State University Experience, published by Praeger in 1965.

Sheinbaum, as part of his duties as campus coordinator, hired Stein, Smith and Jones. At the time all he knew about the men was that they came from the "Department of the Army." Sheinbaum recalls that he was proceeding to investigate the background of the three applicants before accepting them when he was told "that it wouldn't be necessary to check out these guys." The message came from Professor Ralph Smuckler, a former Vietnam Project head.

Sheinbaum said he was on the job for 18 months before he was taken into the administration's confidence and told about the CIA men. "Smuckler pulled me aside one day and told me that I should know that these CIA guys were there, but that we didn't talk about them," he said.

Professor Scigliano's first brush with the CIA came during his first meeting with the police advisory group in Saigon. He said that Babineau, whom he knew from the organizational chart as head of the VBI Internal Security, was introduced as a CIA man. The other CIA agents were also introduced, and Babineau made a short speech in which he expressed hope that the professors and his people would get along well. Scigliano recalls Babineau saying, "We hope we don't get in your way."

A professor and his wife became friends with one of the CIA men and his wife, and the couples often dined together. "We talked about books and music," he said, but there was an unspoken rule that they would never mention the CIA. The entire unit operated on an identical hear-no-CIA, see-no-CIA basis. They worked out of offices in one corner of the police administration floor of the beige, converted apartment building that housed the MSU

Project. The CIA men came in early in the morning, stayed for about an hour, and then locked their offices and left for the day. They all drove their own cars and their French was the most fluent on the Project.

If the CIA men got nothing else from their fraternization with Michigan State University, they became the first persons in the spy business to gain academic recognition. "Some of the CIA guys attained faculty status at MSU — some as lecturers, some as assistant professors, depending on their salaries. I know, because I remember signing the papers that gave them faculty rank," Sheinbaum said.

The CIA unit operated within its Michigan State "cover" until 1959. Scigliano and Fox state in their book, in what must rank as one of the more terse statements of the decade: "USOM [United States Operations Mission] also absorbed at this time [1959] the CIA unit that had been operating within MSUG [Michigan State University Group]."

In plain language, Michigan State threw the CIA men out. One of the principal factors leading to the MSU decision was that by 1959 just about everybody in the know was cognizant of the CIA operation. This was not only embarrassing to the legitimate professors, but it served to taint the reputation of the limited amount of solid academic work that was done during the Project. For instance, an anthropologist working far out in the Vietnamese flatlands was flabbergasted to find a local police chief interrupt his work on the grounds that he was digging up bones on behalf of the United States Central Intelligence Agency. The decision to terminate the CIA unit was brought to Professor Scigliano by Smuckler. Babineau was not in Saigon at the time, so Professor Scigliano gave Jones the bad news. He recalls that Jones was "quite upset," as was the United States Mission which wanted the CIA unit to stay right where it was — sheltered by the groves of academe.

Within weeks, the entire "VBI Internal Security Section" had moved over to the offices of the United States Mission to operate, presumably, more in the open. By 1959, the United States was making little pretense of following the Geneva Accords anyway.

[ACADEMICS IN ARMORED CARS]

IN THE SPRING OF 1955 Diem gained control of the Army. The United States, which was (and still is) providing the entire South Vietnam Army payroll, said it wouldn't give out any more checks unless the Army played ball with our boy. Diem then used the Army to crush the sect that had controlled the Saigon police and elements of the far-flung Sûreté. The gargantuan task of rebuilding the entire Vietnam police apparatus, from traffic cop to "interrogation expert," as a loyal agency of the Diem government then fell to Michigan State University.

Diem, lacking popular support, could only retain power through an effective police and security network. The American embassy urgently signaled the MSU contingent to concentrate on this problem, and, like good team players from a school with a proud football tradition, the professors went along.

The professors not only trained Diem's security forces but, in the early years of the Project, actually supplied them with guns and ammunition. In doing so, the East Lansing contingent helped to secure Diem's dictatorship and to provide the base and the arms for the "secret police" which were to make Madame Nhu and her brother infamous at a later date.

If not academic, the professors were at least professional. Many supplies—revolvers, riot guns, ammunition, tear gas, jeeps, handcuffs, radios — were requisitioned by the East Lansing School of Police Administration from stocks left over from America's aid to the French Expeditionary Corps. These supplies were then turned over to the Vietnamese who would strive to achieve Diem's own form of "consensus" government — a consensus gained largely by hauling the dissenters off to jail. Despite the largess left by the French, the professors found it necessary to order some $15 million in additional "equipment" from the United States Mission.

Listen to some of the official progress reports sent home to East Lansing by the professors:

November 8, 1955: "During the month of October we received notice of Washington's approval of the recommended expanded police program . . . Conferences were held at USOM on October 10 and the Embassy on October 23 and 24, trying to coordinate Internal Security Operations in Vietnam in which our government has an interest."

April 17, 1956: "The training of the commando squads of Saigon-Cholon police in riot control formations has continued during the month . . . A report on riots and unlawful assembly is nearing completion."

June 5, 1957: "Training of the Presidential Security Guard in revolver shooting began during the month. Thirty-four VBI agents completed the revolver course."

September 11, 1957: "Eight hundred pairs of Peerless handcuffs arrived in Saigon, but distribution is being delayed pending arrival of 400 additional cuffs."

February 17, 1958: "The training of 125 military and Civil Guard fingerprint technicians at the VBI proceeds satisfactorily. The Palace Guard is being put through another class in revolver training, with 58 men receiving instruction. Forty members of the VBI completed fire-arm training."

An MSU Inventory, 1955

AS BEFITS A UNIVERSITY PROJECT, many of the professors indulged in their academic specialties. Ralph Turner, a professor of police administration, feels that one of the Project's most singular achievements was the program whereby every Vietnamese citizen would be given an identification card — with a special American touch. The cards were laminated so the poor, plasticless Viet Cong would have difficulty forging them.

Dean Brandstatter did not move lock, stock and pistol to Saigon, but he managed frequent "inspection trips"—as did some 11 of the University officials, including President Hannah, all of course at government expense. Brandstatter, a former military policeman, utilized his expertise to immediate effect during one of his first trips. Rumors of a coup against Diem were escalating, and the East Lansing official personally inspected the Palace Guard to see that they had enough guns to meet the threat.

Brandstatter, a large, jovial man in his early fifties, and devoted follower of MSU's football fortunes, played talent scout for the police operation. The services that the MSU team was called upon to perform for Diem's security apparatus were so esoteric that even its heralded School of Police Administration wasn't up to the job. Brandstatter had to recruit specially trained cops from all over the country. Fingerprint experts, small arms experts and intelligence experts came from the Detroit police force, the New York police force, the FBI and even the Department of Defense. Other professors, doing civil service work, felt a little left out and labeled the onslaught of police experts "mercenaries." This might seem a little unkind, but the term seems somewhat applicable since, at one point in the Project, only four of the 33 police advisors had roots at the Michigan campus; the others were nomads. The Project, of course, still bore the name — or the "cover" — of the MSUG since these "mercenaries" were all put on the MSU payroll and provided with faculty status. In the action filled world of the service station university, not only do the professors become activists, but the cops aspire to professorships.

[DECLINE AND FALL]

NGO DINH DIEM was a nice man to buy guns for, but in other areas of human endeavor, the professors discovered that he could be a tough man to do business with. Even Wolf Ladejinsky who broke bread regularly with Diem was subject to occasional indignities. When an issue of the New Republic appeared in Saigon containing an article mildly critical of the Diem regime, the President sent Ladejinsky packing off from the palace to buy up all the copies from the dozen English language kiosks in Saigon.

The game in Saigon was to cater to Diem's pettiness and paranoia, and for the most part the men from Michigan State played it. There appeared to be a conscious effort within the Project administration to prepare reports pleasing, or at least palatable, to the President. Milton Taylor, an MSU economics professor who went to Vietnam as a tax advisor, said that his reports were often rewritten by the Project head. When he questioned this practice he was told that there were "higher considerations" at stake; other universities were in hot pursuit of the juicy Vietnam contract.

It became necessary to forsake principles for the good of the Project. At times, in the Saigon of the late 1950s, that must have been difficult. Professor Adrian Jaffe of the MSU English Department, one of the most persistent critics of his university's "Vietnam Adventure," recalls some vivid street scenes. Each morning, men, and more often than not women and children, were hauled out of the jail directly across from his office at the Faculty of Letters of the University of Saigon, handcuffed, thrown into a van, and driven away to an island concentration camp known as a sort of Devil's Island à la Diem. Professors in the Project, because of their intimacy with the Vietnamese security apparatus, knew this was happening, Jaffe said, but his colleagues said and did nothing.

The moral question raised by Jaffe is dismissed by many veterans of the Project as "unprofessional." Perhaps more professional was the work of Wesley Fishel, who, as late as the fall of November 1959, wrote an article in the New Leader with the obfuscating title, "Vietnam's One-Man Democratic Rule." The text requires no recounting, except to observe that Fishel uses adjectives for Diem that only Jack Valenti might dare use for Johnson.

The failure of the MSU professors to bear witness against what are now known to be Diem's outrageous violations of civil liberties raises serious questions about them as men. But their failure as professionals in exercising the traditional role of the independent scholar as critic accounted in large part for the general ignorance of the United States public about the true nature of Diem's regime. Professors, presumed to be men of principle, were on the scene in Vietnam and had to be accepted as the best unprejudiced source of information. David Halberstam, after all, simply could have been mad at Madame Nhu.

The same disastrous vacuum of information occurred in this country only a decade before when the China experts, almost to a man, were purged as Reds and comsymps, and yahoos were all the public had left to hear.

In Vietnam, at least, there was a Buddhist monk with the fortitude to burn himself — and the public suddenly wondered how what they had been reading about Diem for six years could have been so wrong. But the professors, by this time, were long back in East Lansing. The MSU Vietnam Project ended rather abruptly in 1962. The University claims that it terminated the arrangement in the name of academic freedom — but the truth is, unfortunately, more complex.

Diem, painfully aware of the slightest criticism, was infuriated by the modicum of critical material published in the United States in the early '60s by veterans of the MSU "experience." Professor Jaffe and economist Milton Taylor wrote an essay for the New Republic in 1961 that set Diem's paranoia percolating. The author dared to suggest that the President rid himself of the Nhush. The contract between Diem and Michigan State stipulated that members of the Project could not use materials gathered on the job "against the security or the interests of Vietnam." In other words, they were to keep quiet. Taylor recalls that many of his colleagues in Vietnam felt he was being "disloyal" in publicly criticizing Diem.

The President was also miffed that in 1959 MSU had drastically curtailed its police work after being urged both by Diem and the United States Mission to plunge more deeply into para-military work than it already had. MSU's reluctance was understandable, since a greater degree of involvement would just about require its professors to shoot off howitzers and drill troops in the jungle.

Nevertheless, the University genuinely believed that its contract would be renewed in 1962. President Hannah even sent a special envoy, Alfred Seelye, dean of the Business College, to Saigon to smooth things out by telling Diem that the University was prepared to weed out any future troublemakers in the Project by selecting personnel more likely to "write scholarly scientific studies and not sensational journalistic articles." Diem, however, surprised everybody. He was adamant: no more MSU.

With no deal in sight, the business dean proceeded to make a strong declaration in defense of the academic freedom of MSU professors and beat Diem in announcing that the contract would not be renewed.

[THE RUINS]

LIKE A FACTORY that has contracted for a job and then completed it, there is little evidence on the MSU campus that it was ever involved in Vietnam. Thousands of pages of mimeographed reports and documents sent from Saigon have been piled haphazardly in out-of-the-way files in the University library, uncatalogued and unused. MSU has not a single course, not even a study program, to show for its six years in Vietnam.

Professor Wesley Fishel still flies in and out of East Lansing, but now he goes to Washington and advises the administration on Vietnam, a role which allows him to visit Saigon occasionally — where he has the look of a man who would like another try. But there is nothing for him to do. Fishel has been careful to exclude the infamous New Leader article from the otherwise thorough 64-page bibliography on Vietnam and Southeast Asia which he distributes to his students.

MSU is still big on police. There are, literally, policemen all over the campus, almost beyond the wildest expansion of the human retina. There is the campus police — a complement of roughly 35 men in blue uniforms. Then there are the professors and visiting firemen at the School of Police Administration. Finally, it is hard to find a parking spot on campus since so many police cars are occupying the stalls; state police headquarters adjoins MSU.

With all this protection the University officials should feel safe. But they do not. President Hannah has lately been publicly worried about the possibilities of what he terms a "Berkeley-style" revolt. The vice-president of student affairs bluntly stated that MSU had been "selected" as the "next Berkeley." Hannah, fearful of "outside agitators," has suggested that there is an "apparatus" at work on campus that is a "tool for international com-munistism." The University police have a special detail charged with keeping tabs on student political activities, especially anything "radical." Several years ago a member of this "Red squad" endeared himself to the student daily by trapping homosexuals in a state-built bathroom.

These conditions would be sufficient enough for the light-hearted to suggest that MSU is a Lilliputian police state, but that is silly. Professor Alfred Meyer of the Political Science department, during his course on the Soviet political system, always gets a good laugh by telling the students to take a good look around campus if they want to know what the Soviet system is like.

Hannah's concern over Berkeley is more than apocryphal. If the Berkeley experience meant any one thing, it meant that the University wasn't doing its job. It had lost its sense of purpose; it no longer had meaning to the students. In that sense East Lansing is, assuredly, another Berkeley. The university on the make has little time for nonconforming students and rarely enough for conforming students. Its service function is the first priority. The students are, in Clark Kerr's idiom, only the "raw material" that has to be processed. That was the making of the Berkeley revolt, and the ingredients are available in excess portions at Michigan State.

Acting dean of international programs, Ralph T. Smuckler, is perhaps the one person at MSU who got something lasting out of the "Vietnam Adventure." He derived an ideology, and it is an ideology that goes Clark Kerr one better. Smuckler sees the future of the social sciences in the world-wide scope of the "action" projects he is now directing — in Formosa as he did in Vietnam. "Classroom teaching is a tame business," said Smuckler, "and anybody who doesn't see how his discipline fits into the overseas operations of the University is already obsolete."

To question the assumption that the academician of tomorrow must be an operator is to ask but part of the essential question about MSU's "Vietnam Adventure." And to ask whether the University officials are liars, or whether the MSU Project broke the spirit of the Geneva Accords, is also neglecting the primary question.

The essential query, which must be asked before the discussion of Michigan State's behavior can be put into any rational perspective, is this: what the hell is a university doing buying guns, anyway?

By Warren Hinckle in conjunction with Research Editor Sol Stern and Foreign Editor Robert Scheer. Material appearing in this special report originated in Mr. Scheer's pamphlet "How the U.S. Got Involved in Vietnam" and will also appear in The Vietnam Lobby by Mr. Scheer and Mr. Hinckle to be published this spring by New American Library.

Statement by John A. Hannah, President
Michigan State University
April 22, 1966

Our first reaction to the article in Ramparts magazine was that the attack on Michigan State University was so grossly inaccurate, unfair and misleading that it should not be dignified by a comprehensive response from the University. A quick analysis revealed no fewer than 53 errors of fact, not even counting the gross distortions or statements quoted out of context.

It has become clear, however, that the charges in the article have far outrun the responses made by various members of the University individually. Other universities holding to the same educational philosophy as Michigan State University consider that they, too, have been attacked indirectly. A decent sense of responsibility to the whole educational community appears to demand a formal response from this University in an effort to set the record straight.

Let me turn first to the broad issues of educational philosophy and purpose. These matters are, in the final analysis, the main targets of this abusive attack.

Michigan State University, and most other universities in this country, particularly the public institutions, do indeed believe in extending service to the public. Also, we believe in providing high quality instruction on our campuses, and in conducting research programs which are both basic and oriented to the needs of society.

We feel that these three functions -- instruction, research, and service -- are interrelated, that one does not necessarily detract from the others, and that only a reactionary definition of higher education would challenge the validity of public service programs. The modern American university strives for excellence in all three areas.

When our faculty members are engaged in providing service, either within Michigan, elsewhere in our country, or overseas, we do not consider their activities as a "diversion of the University," but instead a recognition of a significant and defensible function of the University. International service in this day and age is a recognition by this University and a great many others that our country is a part of the larger world community.

To say that a University should never undertake to serve the national policy is to deny the right of the public university to exist. In everything it does, the public university carries out the national policy that education shall be fostered and encouraged for the benefit of all citizens in all of their legitimate undertakings. We are not about to abandon that mission after more than a century of spectacular success.

The M.S.U. participation in the U.S. aid program in Vietnam began in 1955 and ended in 1962. It was carried out under contracts between the University and the Foreign Operations Administration and its successor agencies, and between the University and the Government of South Vietnam.

As one part of our contract program in Vietnam, we contracted to provide advisory and training services in the field of civil police administration. As another part, we contracted to provide advisory and training services to other agencies of public administration.

To question in 1966 the need for civil police improvement in a country such as Vietnam under the conditions obtaining in 1954 and 1955 is to ignore reality. In 1954, the civil police services in Vietnam were extremely weak, since most of the leadership and administration of these services had formerly been provided by the French, who had recently withdrawn. The same serious weaknesses were characteristic of the other public services. The Vietnamese Government was seeking to establish itself and to restore public order with few or no resources, or facilities, or trained personnel.

When the United States Government and the President of Vietnam asked Michigan State University for aid in strengthening the Vietnamese public services, it seemed to be a logical request. Michigan State University had then and continues to have a well-known and highly respected professional School of Police Administration capable of providing advisory and training services in the area of evident need.

Now let me turn to a few of the specific charges on the Vietnam project itself. As noted earlier, we have identified at least 53 erroneous statements in the article. Some of the errors are minor, but when errors are added to falsehoods and distortion, the sum total becomes vicious in effect. I am not going to cover the minor points, even though their refutation can be documented. Instead, I am going to dwell upon some of the major lines of criticism to which this University feels it should respond.

What about this most publicized question of Central Intelligence Agency personnel working within our ranks? First, let me state without any reservations that Michigan State did not have a spy operation within its Vietnam Project. It did not have CIA people operating under cover provided by the University, or in secret from the Vietnamese government.

After agreeing to assist in the broad field of public administration, we found that the dimensions of the assignment would require us to recruit additional personnel from other universities, which we did. In the field of civil police administration, we had to recruit from civil police organizations, in Michigan and other states, individuals capable of carrying out advisory and training assignments in several specialized areas, such as identification and traffic control.

In the field of counter-subversion, these specialists were not available from American civil police organizations, but could be recruited only from other Government agencies. Having accepted responsibility in the entire civil police field as defined by the Vietnamese government, we employed on our staff individuals who had a background in intelligence work for the United States Government. None of these, at the time of employment, was known by the University or its representatives to have affiliations with the Central Intelligence Agency.

All of the people in the M.S.U. mission in Saigon were there to perform functions that had been specifically requested by the Vietnamese government. Those functions had been clearly laid out and agreed to by all concerned. There was no deception of the government of Vietnam.

All of our people were involved in training and advisory roles only. They were under Michigan State University control, and could have been sent home at the discretion of Michigan State University if they had performed in a way we did not consider appropriate. They put in a full day's work each day on M.S.U. training and advisory assignment, and received pay from the University for services specified in our contracts with the U.S. aid agency and the Vietnamese government. Despite statements to the contrary, the University never entered into any contract with the Central Intelligence Agency.

Those employed by the University for civil police assignments were not given academic appointments, as has been alleged. All of those not regular members of the M.S.U. School of Police Administration were given the title of "police specialist" -- not titles as instructors, or professors at any level.

To recapitulate, the individuals named in the article -- and others not so identified -- were nominated to us by agencies of the United States Government other than the Central Intelligence Agency, were interviewed by us, and met our requirements. Their work in Vietnam was under our supervision exclusively,

The Ramparts article is incorrect when it states that there were agents on our staff instructed or permitted to engage in counter-espionage and counter-intelligence. This was not the case and to the best of our knowledge it did not occur.

Most of the references in the article to incidents related to the CIA are anecdotal in nature and it is not possible to comment on them specifically. I do not know when any individual had his "first brush" with the CIA or who said what to whom at what moment about such individuals. The type of hearsay which is reported as fact in the Ramparts article cannot be answered by the University nor dignified by it.

Let me merely add that our decision to withdraw from counter-subversive training of the Vietnamese civil police was part of a general decision that we had made on this campus to reduce the size and scope of our police administration effort in Saigon to dimensions that could be staffed more adequately by our own people.

After we had made that decision, we could not implement it within a matter of weeks. Instead, it took a number of months because of personnel commitments and the need to be sure that functions from which we were withdrawing were not left completely unserved. Our obligations were to the United States Government and to the Vietnamese Government, and to a segment of our project staff as well, and all three knew what we were doing. By the fall of 1959, almost seven years ago, we had reduced the size of our civil police administration division to eight persons, and this included five from our own Michigan State faculty.

In concluding our response to this particular charge let me say that this University has been and continues to be opposed to having university groups "used" by the CIA or any other organization. Anything this University does abroad it does at the request of the host country, and is fully known to the host country's officials. This has been the case in the past and it is now the case.

Now for a second issue -- the amount of money involved in our project. $25,000,000 is cited in the article as the amount spent by this University in technical assistance to South Vietnam. This figure is a gross exaggeration. The truth is that our reimbursement in U.S. dollars under our contracts during the entire seven-year period amounted to $5.3 million.

In addition, our project in Vietnam received counterpart funds for use in paying local rents, for salaries to local staff, and for other local expenses. The total piasters expended for these purposes, translated into dollars at the exchange rate then current, approximated $2.5 million. If those two totals are added together, then the total cost of our project did not exceed $7.8 million. This, it will be noted, is less than one-third of the $25,000,000 figure cited by Ramparts.

The amount of money spent on the Michigan State University project should be viewed within the context of the total support provided to the Republic of Vietnam by the U.S. Government during this seven-year period. The best figures we are able to find indicate that the U.S. Government provided $1,366,000,000 in economic and technical assistance to Vietnam from 1955 to 1962, the period of our contracts. Thus the amount of money that went into our project was about six-tenths of 1 per cent of the total amount provided by the U.S. Government in support of the social and economic development programs of the Government of South Vietnam in those seven years.

Michigan State University was not responsible in any respect for funds that may have been expended by other agencies of the U.S. Government in Vietnam. Our people may have advised on the wise use of some of those funds, as I would maintain was their responsibility, but they did not control or expend the funds.

The article in Ramparts concludes with the query: "What the hell is a university doing buying guns anyway?" The answer is easy: Michigan State University did not buy a single gun. Nor did it buy ammunition for guns, nor handcuffs, nor other police supplies.

The article states "many supplies . . . were requisitioned by the East Lansing School of Police Administration from stocks left over from America's aid to the French Expeditionary Corps." Such supplies may have been requisitioned by U.S. agencies, but they were not requisitioned by the M.S.U. School of Police Administration.

The article is illustrated with something labeled "An M.S.U. Inventory, 1955," which lists ammunition stocks. Where this sheet came from is best known to the editors of Ramparts. We have been unable to identify it. It may have been taken out of a U.S. aid mission file, or from a Vietnamese government release of some sort. It may even have come out of an M.S.U. advisor's file, because I would assume that a civil police administration advisor would have some notion of the supplies available to the police organization he was advising and its operational requirements. This would be logical and necessary.

Let me say again, no armaments nor ammunitions were supplied through the Michigan State contract. Such items were supplied by the U.S. aid mission in Vietnam through normal aid procurement channels as a part of the normal economic aid to the Vietnamese government. People working for Michigan State in Saigon advised the aid mission on such purchases, and they saw to it that the funds were efficiently spent and the equipment was well used. But the University itself did not requisition or procure such items.

Furthermore, and more importantly, all of this information was given to the tri-partite International Control Commission, the enforcement agency for the Geneva Agreement, and it raised no objections. So much for the truth of the accusation that our university was violating international agreements.

Turning to another broad accusation -- that the M.S.U. people in Saigon lived luxuriously. The first death among our staff resulting from our work in Vietnam occurred within a year after the project began, and came as a result of distressing living conditions, and the lack of appropriate medicine. Most of our people at one time or another were hospitalized or treated for amebic dysentery and/or hepatitis. The article refers to "air-conditioned villas." There were several small air-conditioned houses, but even in the severe Saigon climate, most advisors lived in homes that had one or two air-conditioned bedrooms at best. The house occupied by our chief of mission in Saigon was smaller than many faculty homes in East Lansing. It was smaller than the residence of chief of mission of the U.S. aid program, and far smaller than those occupied by the ambassador and by the general who headed the MAG program.

As for salaries, the arrangements in Vietnam were standard practice. A professor's salary was annualized, and then an average incentive increment of no more than 10 per cent was added to his salary. This became his base overseas salary. In some posts, such as Saigon where severe hardships existed, an increment, called a hardship allowance, was added. This varied during the life of the project from 15 to 25 per cent. The salary scale for our people in Saigon did not run high nor were their salaries out of line with salaries of other Americans working in Saigon or at other overseas posts of a similar nature.

Now let us turn to another broad unfounded accusation -- that our people were uncritical or were muffled by the University or others. It is true that those who had access to classified information could not, for security reasons, use such information in publications. Beyond this, the accusation is false.

Let us remember that the situation of the 1950's in Vietnam was considerably different than it was in the 1960's. With rare exception, there was general agreement that the government of Ngo Dinh Diem, when it came to power in 1954, offered the best hope for social, economic, and political progress in Vietnam. Just what it is. The fact that not many of our people were being openly critical in American newspapers about the Diem regime in the 1950's undoubtedly reflects the fact that many of them, in their independent judgments, felt that the situation at that time was evolving in a reasonable direction.

It is a well-known fact that our project in Vietnam was terminated ahead of schedule in 1962 at least in part as a result of the critical writing of our professors and others within our group. President Diem objected vigorously to this criticism, but the University made it clear that it would not censor faculty writing nor impede informed criticism. The criticism increased as his regime evolved in an increasingly authoritarian direction.

Almost all of the reports written by our people recommended changes in the government. For example, early in our work, M.S.U. advisors recommended popular election of province chiefs. Our recommendations in the civil police field repeatedly urged more modern and more humane practices in that field. Changes and improvements were urged frequently upon President Diem directly in meetings with him. Our people brought their criticisms to the attention of high officials within the Vietnamese government and within the American government. All of these were aimed at improving the situation and at expanding social and economic development opportunities. That our recommendations were not being followed became increasingly apparent. By the late 1950's our project had developed a phase-out plan because we recognized that our advice was not being listened to and that, in fact, we could not be effective because of trends within the country and within the government.

The University has not tried to hide its Vietnam project in any sense, as the article implies. The critical reports referred to above have been circulated and have been available for many years in appropriate university and other libraries throughout the United States. They were available to the authors of this objectionable article had they had any intent to make a fair presentation.

The University encouraged the writing of an objective analysis of the total project, which was published and is often quoted. There has been considerable scholarship growing out of the experience in Vietnam. At least seven books have been published, based on work there, and in addition to this 25 or 30 monographic studies, including a number of training manuals, have been published. Bibliographies have been prepared in order to broaden scholarly interest in Vietnam, and these were published by the MSU/Vietnam project office. A substantial number of articles was published by people affiliated with our project and members of our faculty during this time. There are 35 or 40 mimeographed surveys, studies and analyses of various segments of the Vietnamese government and society as a part of the product of the program.

There are a number of other positive accomplishments to the credit of the project. These are completely ignored in the article. The National Institute of Administration, the main instrument of our efforts in the public administration field, still exists in Saigon, and is still functioning effectively. Many of its graduates now serve as district chiefs and elsewhere. The institution we helped to build is continuing to contribute trained civil servants and administrative leaders in Vietnam. A recent personal letter told me in glowing terms about the work of one of these graduates in a remote area of Vietnam; it is something of which to be proud. Some of the students whom we helped train, either at Michigan State University or through our participant program at other universities, are now in highly responsible positions both at the National Institute and within government agencies in Vietnam.

The Ramparts article offers its authors' gross assumptions about the motivation of this university and others involved in international work. Establishing motives is a very difficult business, but it seems to me that there have been too few questions asked about the motives of the authors of the Ramparts article and of the magazine itself.

We know that Ramparts magazine has been extremely critical of U.S. policy in Vietnam. This is the publisher's privilege, but he is not privileged to use this University as his whipping boy.

We have been informed that two or three of the authors of the article are running for Congress in California.

We know that one member of the writing team, now an editorial board member of Ramparts, and a candidate for Congress, was a staff member at Michigan State who left this University in a very unhappy mood.

We wonder whether the sensational methods used to hawk this article in Michigan do not represent an amazingly brazen -- and regrettably successful -- promotion scheme. I cite all this only to suggest what may be clues to the motivation of this attack on this University and those who serve it.

Finally, Michigan State University is continuing to evolve in its international program work. The Vietnam project was one of the first that Michigan State entered into, and we have learned many lessons since then.

For example, in our various overseas projects we now make use of Michigan State faculty members primarily. Of the 17 persons currently stationed at various points in Asia on University technical assistance projects, 16 are drawn from our regular faculty and the 17th we would like to hire if we possibly could. In Africa and Latin America, the percentage will vary from one month to another, but in general four out of five of the people working for Michigan State come out of teaching departments on our campus. This has been our record since 1959.

The types of overseas projects in which our University and others are involved have been heavily influenced by early experience. Today, we try to have contractual relations with other universities or ministries of Education, not with governments directly. Our main efforts are to help build educational institutions or educational programs. Research which is of interest to our faculty and needed by the developing countries is one of the by-products of these projects. We have established a variety of exchange programs through which our faculty and students can study abroad and scholars from other countries can come to East Lansing.

We have learned some of the things that university people are best able to do internationally, and others which they cannot. We try to avoid situations of great political sensitivity because we do not feel that university teams can operate effectively under such conditions. However, it should be pointed out that projects which begin in relatively non-sensitive situations may eventually find themselves in an environment which is considerably different. Vietnam is an example. This is one of the facts of life in the developing countries and must be understood by those who attempt to evaluate university projects overseas. All of these factors, in addition to those that I have mentioned earlier, emphasize fundamental distortion in the Ramparts attack.

I have not attempted to comment on the article in every detail, but only to indicate the University's response to broad accusations. Our Vietnam work has been criticized before; it has also been praised. Our work was less successful than we would have liked, but not nearly as bad as some, for whatever reason, would have the public believe.

The main issue for us now is whether we have made any contributions, whether we have learned from past experiences, and whether we have continued to improve. We believe we have.

PRESIDENT HANNAH

SYNOPSIS

May 1960

Asian situation in 1952 - what happened there was more important than in Europe because we had friends in Europe, but none in Asia. Many people were having trouble in Asia - Britain, Indochina infiltrated by Red-Chinese.

Indo China - people there were basically Chinese from the south end of China, possessing a distinguished culture and the advantages of the old Chinese wisdom. They were independent for 900 years and then taken over by the French until the end of World War II. There followed an eight year war, led by Ho Chi Minh, who had been trained in Moscow. With the end of the war we were faced with the question of what to do in Asia, mainly in keeping Southeast Asia out of the Communist orbit. The Geneva Conference divided Vietnam at the 17th parallel.

The South had a new government, headed by President Diem who had been in the old Indo Chinese government.

Involvements of MSU outside the United States - the war in Asia could no longer allow us to ignore China. MSU decided to broaden its scope to include studies in other lands with experts on those lands in order to prepare its students for life in this world. Professor Lee was engaged for the Oriental Institute. Also a Latin American Institute. The university was not concerned with overseas operations, but the need for understanding of other peoples of the world for living in a growing world - "exposure to the shrinking nature of the world"

Point 4 - Meeting with Dr. Bennett of Oklahoma State University, also a land grant college. Discussed the great strides made by these agriculture schools - percentage of labor needed for agriculture originally 85% with the other 15% needed for the processing of these goods and making of goods needed other than agriculturally oriented. Reversed to 15% and 85% respectively, and now is only 8%. The question was, could we do the same thing in Africa, Latin America, etc, where they do not have enough food.

It was decided that MSU would try it in Colombia and that they would work in Ethiopia. Our project failed because of changes in the university government, no high schools in Latin America for the preparation of students for higher learning, etc., but Oklahoma is still working in Ethiopia. This was in 1951.

In 1952 we started a project in Okinawa. Our troops had been there since 1945, but with inadequate facilities for educating staff to support our military services. The government was asked to identify an American land grant university to develop a university there. From very inadequate facilities, a university was developed, The University of the Ryukyus.

In 1953 we were in Brazil, at the request of the Brazilian government to develop a business administration program, the only one in Latin America. This project is just about finished.

Why - we were asked by the government if MSU would be interested or willing to work on this because of the confidence of Vietnam's president in MSU. This was to be an in-service program with emphasis in training of a civilian police force because of the newness of the state and the lack of personnel due to the fact that they had previously been French. They needed people who knew about taxation, civil service, etc. We were asked because of our program in Police Administration, which was, and still is, the largest and best in the country. It should be noted, that at first, there was little enthusiasm about the project.

How are these projects financed - Never by any tax money raised in Michigan, nor has any university money been spent on any project outside the United States. Financing would have to be from outside sources - foundations such as the Ford or Carnegie Foundations or the government.

Move to educate students in world affairs in order to prepare them for the world. Even now there is a bill before Congress to separate American universities from government. There is a recognition that this is the only direction in which we can move in order to make Americans fit for a world role.

In regard to the MSU project, President Hannah stated that there have been numerous articles written in regard to the project, 147 of them releases by the university, and many of those by the university have been quite self-critical.

Refugees - after the division of the country, the people were given the opportunity to move from the south to the north, and vice versa. 900,000 moved from the north to the south, while only 5,000 moved from south to north, although it has been stated that there were many communist sympathizers left in the South. This created a situation of refugee camps which the MSU project had to deal with.

Books - book by Scigliano and Fox about our project in Vietnam - MSU subsidized with $5,000 in order to encourage its publication. There was also a book by Scheer. Between these two books and other publications there has been nothing that has not been covered. We tried to hide nothing.

Participation in these projects was decided upon by the people and individual colleges involved.

World climate of opinion - We are trying to make these judgments on the basis of current world situations. All decisions made seemed to be "wise at the time" Quotation from an article in May, 1958 shows that Diem was welcomed heartily on a visit to this country and congratulated on his accomplishments as head of one of the youngest republics. He was called a "partner in a going enterprise."

QUESTION PERIOD

Explanation of the confusion about the MSU story of CIA agents:

The April 19, 1966 State News stated that there were contracts with CIA, and quotes by Smuckler saying that we "may not have been right to get into it," and Scigliano saying "we used to call them CIA men."

Answer: We had a responsibility to develop a civilian police force, and also to educate them in counter-subversion techniques, in order to make it possible to deal with the Communists who had been left behind. We could not spare much of our faculty. We had to select other people from civilian government. These people had to give up their jobs. In order to get into the area of counter-subversion, the only place where we could find people who knew how to deal with this was from our intelligence operations. The reports from these people showed nothing connected with CIA.

We never had any contracts with the CIA. We came to the conclusion that this was an area that we should get out of almost immediately. The decision was made firm in 1957. We were out of the "anti-subversion business" by 1959. Our people were becoming disillusioned because their suggestions were not heeded.

Did Hannah know during the negotiations of 1954-55 that there were to be CIA involved?

Answer: All of these people working for the university were under our jurisdiction.

Brandstatter: There was no question raised as to the credentials of the people hired.

We never learned at any point that there were CIA ^{agents} in the project. People working in Vietnam came back with reports that these people were CIA, but there was no real foundation to these reports, nor any conclusive evidence that these people were CIA operatives. The nature of CIA is that these people do not go around making themselves known.

How were people selected?

Answer: By letters, announcements - we were looking for competencies and abilities. People applied for the jobs, credentials were reviewed, the people were interviewed. Hiring was on the basis of credentials.

Who knew that the university was taking this action (in the state government?)

Answer: (Pres. Hannah) This was a matter of great public interest. The Board of Trustees makes all final decisions, and this was approved by the Board of Trustees.

How did you find people knowledgeable in counter-subversive work?

Answer: (Brandstatter) Experts in counter-subversion are not available from civil agencies. Had to be gotten from available contacts, from military service, etc. Again, chosen by credentials and through interviews.

Were these people hired at a higher salary than the people from MSU because of their special abilities?

Answer: They were hired at salaries established by the Board of Trustees. They were paid by the university and under the direction and control of the university.

What happened to these people when the counter-subversion program was dropped?

Answer: They were not sent home, but transferred to other programs in Saigon. They had no faculty status.

What constitutes knowledge in regard to knowing if they were really CIA agents?

Answer: These people would have had to identify themselves to Brandstatter. They did not and there was no other knowledge or suspicions.

After the first year there was some suspicion in reports from Vietnam.

Do Hannah and Brandstatter have security clearances.

Answer: Hannah does.

Is there any restriction on information you (Hannah) can divulge?

Answer: None about this project.

Is information related to CIA considered secure?

Answer: There is no information about CIA covered by security.

Is MSU now involved in any foreign police administration courses? Are there any other American colleges now involved?

Answer: Police Administration project has been terminated. The University of Southern California was involved prior to our involvement. We have not been involved in any other projects in this field.

Dr. Smuckler - There have been a series of re-evaluations going on after the creation of International Programs.

We felt that the project in Vietnam was too much involved in Police Administration and not enough with other useful things. The movement away from Police Administration was objected to by the Vietnam and US government. Took so long because we had to see to it that AID would take care of these people within Vietnam.

We did not know there were CIA agents, definitely, but we knew that people working with counter-subversion were of an intelligence background. These people were all subject to the jurisdiction of MSU. There were no undercover spying operations.

The program of Police Administration was phased out in 1957-58 after the establishment of a central university office concerning the work. It became obvious we were too heavy in Police Administration work in Vietnam. When I (Smuckler) went to Vietnam, it was with the idea of phasing out the program. By 1959 there were only five of these people left.

Would you ever report you had suspicions?

Answer: I probably would.

We had gotten into a situation where we had to look off campus to get people to man a University project.

What was the security clearance of the people on the project?

Answer: Most people had "secret" clearance.

Scheer stated that "CIA operated openly" as a means of bring in arms and materials not in accord with the Geneva Agreement.

Answer: (Hannah) We did not buy guns.

Perhaps you did not technically buy guns, but couldn't you have had others buy them for you? Isn't this part of the purchasing procedure?

Answer: (Hannah) We were not in the business of buying ammunition or guns.

Where does this reflect in the budget?

Answer: (Hannah) There were two sources of revenue. Dollars paid to the business office and funds under Public Law #480. Under this law funds are agreed upon by the two governments involved and held in the host country. This was not all in material things.

There was $5.3 million paid to the university for contracts and 177 million piasters spent in Vietnam. At the going exchange, were $2.5 million, but official rate would be about $5 million.

Philip May: The policy decision to involve ourselves without profit, but also without costs. There is now a method for computing direct cost of overhead and reimbursement of indirect expenses. Overhead maintenance costs eliminated in figuring overseas projects. There is overhead connected with everyone of these contracts.

Sheinbaum says that these projects cause professors to be away from the campus and students would be instructed by less-competent people. Are we having to pay twice as many people to do the same job?

Answer: (Hannah) If a professor is out of the country the salary is charged to International Programs. We are staffed to take care of absences.

What about promotion by being overseas? Do they come back and demand a higher salary?

Answer: People are afraid that they will be forgotten. They are not forgotten, but certainly are not more generously treated. There is a salary adjustment for overseas, and then when they come back they return to their original salaries, which are subject to all adjustments that have applied to people still at home.

Ramparts asks why we do not sue. The question is how does a university go about suing? A university is in a position comparable to a public official. There is no legal process available. The university has to prove monetary damage, but how can it?

In answer to costs, we spent 7.2 million, plus the 2.5 million in piasters.

SHEINBAUM

Comment on Hannah's remarks about the origins of the cold war. Ramparts is questioning the nature of involvement. The public is now uneasy about Vietnam and beginning to question. Policies questioned.

He left the university in an unhappy mood. Smuckler thinks there is guilt, which is true. Fishel says he is an advocate of the Viet Cong. Is not going to go into that.

Are his motives relevant to the issues? The implication of the involvement are serious. A denial is irrelevant.

Hannah ignores all questions, but they have to do with the intellectual health of our universities.

Personal story - August, 1955 - invited by Killingsworth to participate. 1955-56, taught in economics.

Fall of 1956 - leave to finish doctorate at Stanford.

January, 1957 - Smuckler, assistant dean of International Programs, asked him to be coordinator of the project. Says that at the same time, Smuckler told him that many people in Vietnam were not operating under MSU, but rather under the CIA Internal Security Division. He was also, supposedly, told that these people were not working as part of the MSU project and would not be advising him as to their work.

At this point it was time to draw up new contracts. The number of men in the "CIA unit" were increased to 5 rather than attempting to take it out of the project.

Hannah was aware of the CIA existence because Sheinbaum discussed it with him himself.

He also said that he was told by Smuckler that new hirings of staff would not require a review of their backgrounds. These men listed their previous employment as Army. Sheinbaum says that they were given regular university status.

MSU adheres to the statement of only counter-subversion work. Why all the secrecy? These people reported to the embassy in Saigon, not to the project.

He insists that the CIA involvement existed with the full knowledge of the university from the start.

Supposedly all motives of the MSU Group were intent on stability. The real problem was that we were all innocents. Fishel and Smuckler knew that CIA was involved.

Where government is involved there can be no real freedom. A university must promote an atmosphere where academic discussions can take place freely. There can be no secretiveness or clandestine activities, for their presence creates an atmosphere of doubt. The university cannot allow itself to become an arm of the state. This leads to totalitarian connections.

Quote from a statement by Eric Sevareid regarding the university and government - there is less direct teaching of the students, but more attention to getting grants, government aid, industrial projects, with little attention to the students. How can students speak freely about the government when they are government supported.

There were no significant amounts of academic research going on, but this just served as a distraction for the faculty. Ten years ago, MSU had one of the finest political science departments, but now they are now almost all gone.

Yes, he felt guilt, but you must sometimes sacrifice principles and values.

We had lent our most precious institution to this clandestine apparatus.

Whether people recognize that we have receded from our principles, can we adhere to our principles and not have to conduct ourselves according to fear.

(Chairman asked that discussion of US involvement be left out).

Sheinbaum remembers signing papers that gave the "CIA agents" faculty rank. He allowed that his memory was that they were given faculty rank, but that he might be wrong. He insisted that all papers about people being hired came through his desk.

He now hated to see the university involved in an investigation by a legislative committee, although they have a perfect right to investigate since it is a state school.

He wanted to know when the Trustees were informed of CIA involvement.

How did Sheinbaum know that 25 million dollars had been spent?

Answer: He left the project in 1959 and said that he really never knew the full amount spent, but learned some from the Scigliano and Fox book. The breakdown was 5 million dollars, 5 million in Vietnam piasters, and 15 million for arms.

Do you believe that the United States' national interests are at stake? -- Yes.

How did you feel about this in the 1950's (were the interests at stake?) -- No.

Why did you agree to participate in an area that we had no interest in?

Answer: Here was an opportunity to engage in a project to attempt to help a small country in trouble. His own interests were in helping the economy, the society of this small country.

Do you feel today that our national interests are more involved? -- Yes.

He feels that industries and foundations are taking too big a hold in universities today.

Now the service concept is being pushed too far. We were at the service of a government agency. We must be careful to avoid too much service to the state.

You were informed at the outset that CIA was involved, yet you accepted. Were you subsequently informed that we pulled out because of unwise involvement? What was the significance of resurrecting the matter?

Answer: I was not made aware of the CIA involvement until I was made coordinator, 1-1/2 years after I started in the project. I was informed of the phasing out in 1958.

Brought the matter to attention now because we are in an impasse in Vietnam. It is threatening our country's security. Always have questioned the role of the CIA abroad. There are errors at all levels.

Did you bring the CIA involvement to light when you returned in 1957?

Answer: I raised the question to Taggart and Smuckler.

HINCKLE

Regarding the administration - Several things done by Hannah - all contradictions. First a denial of the CIA's existence, then the statement that if there was a CIA agent, we did not know it and that none were known of by the officials to be there, and finally, if they were there, "so what". There is a difference of opinion of Hannah and statements of professors, books, and the CIA Watchdog Committee.

If Hannah did not know of the existence of CIA in Vietnam in 1955-57, who was making the decisions. Why were they increased after 1957 rather than discontinued. Who was making the decisions - Hannah or Fishel?

Getting together on the plane - supposedly interviewed all involved members and this is what they said.

Unanswered letter from Fishel - cannot really answer that because the member of the Ramparts staff to which it was addressed is not here today.

There is an insistence that these people worked for MSU and that they did not know what they did on their own time. Yet, Scigliano and Fox complained that the CIA unit was secretive. These people were working for the embassy and not for the university.

There has been no pressure brought to rescind the statements in Ramparts.

Magazine backing - no dirty or Communist money. All supported by Catholic laymen, Republicans, and businessmen.

Why were they called the "university on the make"?

Answer: This is in reference to MSU's large foreign operations. This is a temptation in terms of overseas assignments and government contracts that impunes academic purposes.

They are raising a question of what is the function of the American university today. The university should not become an instrument or an extension of a government, but a "citadel of academic independence".

Don't professors bring back extended knowledge and experience to the campus?

Answer: Universities are okay overseas, but the rewards are not commensurate with their work overseas.

Sheinbaum disapproved of the project because they allowed a dictatorship to be installed in 1960-62 without any newspaper or academic reports - "The United States created a dictatorship in a democracy." His criticism is not limited to the 1955-59 period. This is just one aspect of it.

FISHEL

I was never consulted on government matters.

The CIA involvement is out of context. In the field we had a different perspective. I was not part of the team which set the project up. I inherited the project. The presence of CIA was assumed and I worked on that assumption, but there was no proof. The counter-subversion people were generally connected in our minds with CIA, but were never specifically identified with it..

About my salary - it was figured by the university and was not sufficient to cover the cost of living. I had to dip into my personal savings at the sum of $5,000.

In regard to my scale of living - I did not choose my house or car, but inherited them from my predecessor.

Hypothetically, if the accusations were true, I would have had no part of the project.

I had nothing to do with Diem's visit to the US. He was impressed with our university's service. He listed the areas in which he wished MSU's help.

Fishel had no connection with the university while on the AID mission.

What about the New Leader article - Letters written trying to make distinctions between what are dictators. An article was written at their request and then it was never printed, but rather parts of his original letter. Attributed to a mistake of a clerk in their offices who entered the wrong material for publication.

Statement about freedom - Diem impressed by the university's public service philosophy and the responsibility of a land grant university to the people of the state. To Diem this academic freedom was important because it meant independence from government control. He was in intense nationalist and intensely anti-French. He wanted to build a government in his state as quickly as possible. He had many doubts about the American AID mission and therefore there were two contracts so that we would not be beholden to the government. We would then be an independent team of experts. There was never any inquiry about breaking the contracts.

We did not take orders from the AID mission. As a matter of fact, we refused to edit or tone down our reports. There were a number of critical reports and statements. Diem was very thin-skinned and felt that the people had turned against him. He was encouraged to protest by the Nhus.

There was nothing done that Diem did not know about.

CIA had, and still has, its own operations in Saigon. There was no mystery as to the comings and goings of the "CIA" men.

Wrote to the Ramparts people and received no acknowledgement of the letter for six months (after a second letter). Now have gotten no reply to the stipulations I asked if I were to do an article for them.

JAFFE

Not a participant in the project, but was in Saigon in 1957-58 as a professor of American Literature at the University of Saigon. He was paid by the Department of State.

He is concerned that MSU be put in to a position inappropriate to work going on on campus. Also concerned with the impropriety of a university's involvement with power politics or politics in general. Unhappy with the involvement of a university with an unpopular government, detention facilities, police activities, etc.

There was a failure to discuss the true nature of the Diem regime and climate of thought. Most of the material written was laudatory of the Diem regime.

The administration was never fully informed of what was going on.

We were always devoted to academic freedom. We should not be put in a position of possibility of guilt by association. He is convinced that university involvement to maintain and raise standards of living abroad is fine, but we must operate as professors, not as diplomats.

Memorandum for the Record by Ralph Smuckler

Subject: Factual misstatements in the Ramparts article of April 1966

This memorandum covers 53 factual items which are stated inaccurately in the Ramparts article. It covers the article, page by page. It makes no attempt to indicate importance of the factual item contested--some are minor, others major. It does not attempt to cover distortions but only to indicate where factual inaccuracies are stated. These items will be numbered in order of occurrence in the article. Some factual errors may be missed since no one person could cover them all.

1. The sentry box at the front of the chief advisor's home was manned, not by a Vietnamese soldier as stated but by a municipal police officer.

2. The reference to "chauffeured limousine bearing license plate number 1 from the government motor pool" is not correct in that MSU maintained its own motor pool and the license plate on the chief advisor's car was not number 1.

3. The reference to "long driveway of the French Villa" is inaccurate in that the driveway to the chief advisor's home was no more than three car lengths long--considerably short of the descriptive "long driveway."

4. The reference to "huge villa" misrepresents the size of the home of the chief advisor. The house consisted of approximately nine rooms which included three enclosed bedrooms, one open bedroom, a guest room or den, a kitchen, study, living room and dining area and the equivalent of three bathrooms.

5. Reference in the second paragraph of page 14 to Wolf Ladejinsky as "the agricultural expert left over from the New Deal" is not accurate in that Ladejinsky's main international agricultural expertise derived from his service as the land reform expert in Japan and Taiwan. During the New Deal years he was relatively unknown except for his papers on the subject of Asian agriculture and land reform. Far from being left over, he developed his reputation almost entirely immediately following the second world war.

6. Reference to "Fishel had a bigger villa than Barrows" is inaccurate. By any type of measurement the USOM director's home was larger than that of the chief advisor in Saigon, although it was not as new.

7. The article states that the Fishel villa was larger than the American ambassador's. By no stretch of the imagination could this be considered true.

8. The article states that the MSU group had "responsibility for the proper functioning of Diem's civil service and his police network." This is not accurate. The responsibility of MSU was to provide training and advisory service to various aspects of the public service, including the civil policy forces. In no sense of the word can the University group be considered "responsible" for proper functioning of these organizations. Vietnamese made all decisions when it came to the operation of the civil service and the civil police.

9. Reference is made to responsibility of the MSU group for the "supplying of guns and ammunition for the city police, the civil guard, and palace police and the dreaded sûreté. This is inaccurate in several respects in that MSU did not supply guns and ammunition for any organizations. Such items were supplied by the aid program. The reference to "palace police" is also inaccurate in that these were not part of the civil police force with which Michigan State had contact.

10. The reference to Clark Kerr as the one who "first came up with the vision of the large university as a 'service station' to society" is inaccurate. The whole concept of universities being of service to society in the United States is one which derives from the land grant act of 1862 and the whole tradition of university development within this country since then. It is far older as a concept that President Clark Kerr.

11. The reference to public service being the "raison d'être of MSU" is inaccurate. Although public service is an important aspect of the University, it is only one of three major activities which are almost always referred to together. The other two are research and education. There are various ways of defining the function of the University but the reference to this one aspect of the University's work as the reason for being for the institution is inaccurate.

12. The reference to President Hannah having an Iowa background is inaccurate.

13. The reference to the School of Hotel Management turning out "educated room clerks" is inaccurate in that it narrows severely and underplays the broader role of the School of Hotel Management.

14. Reference to the International Program Center having been built with administrative allowance on the Vietnam contract is inaccurate. Accumulated overhead funds did pay for a portion of the International Programs Center, but these did not necessarily derive from the Vietnam contract.

15. Reference to the countries MSU is presently helping as "lopsided with military dictatorships" is inaccurate. The fact that there are military dictatorships in the world is known as a fact of life. The countries with which Michigan State is working are no more and no less so governed than the average less developing country of the world.

16. The reference to the University being a leader abroad in areas chosen for it by the federal government is inaccurate in that the University makes its decisions as to where it wishes to work. In several cases it is working in countries where the federal government does not support MSU work.

17. Reference to the one sentence about the Vietnam Project in the International Program brochure is accurate, but a distortion in that the specific brochure deals with present programs and projections and the Vietnam Project was concluded in 1962.

18. Reference to $25,000,000 in taxpayer's funds spent by the MSU group is inaccurate. The total expenditures in dollars were in the 5.3 million category and in addition piastre funds were expended at a 2 1/2 or 5 million dollar level (depending on exchange rate used in calculations). The combined total would be far less than $25,000,000. At most it would be in the $10,000,000 category. Only by including many expenditures made by the aid program itself in support of public administration and civil police administration work could one arrive at a total in the $25,000,000 category. These aid program expenditures were not "spent" by MSU, and in fact Michigan State did not control the funds.

19. Reference to MSU asking the "CIA unit to go elsewhere because its presence had become such embarrassing general knowledge" are inaccurate. It was not a matter of knowledge but a matter of the University, in redefining and reappraising its international program work, feeling that it should not be engaged in tasks for which its own faculty did not have the specific talents needed. It was the principle involved, not the "general knowledge" which caused the move.

20. Reference to Fishel's thesis as "nondescript" is inaccurate in view of the fact that it was at that time being considered for publication by the California Press and in fact was published shortly thereafter and was well reviewed.

21. Reference to Diem being appointed a consultant to the MSU Governmental Research Bureau is inaccurate in that while he was named consultant for a very brief period he was not appointed formally nor did he receive any funds from the University for his brief visit to the campus.

22. The reference to Arthur Brandstatter "who now heads the Police Administration School" seems to imply that he did not head the school at the time he served on the survey mission. The fact is that he was chairman of the Department of Policy Administration (predecessor to the School) at that time.

23. The statement that none of the men who went on the survey team had any experience in academic or technical assistance roles overseas is in error. Brandstatter for one, had served abroad and had participated in advisory services related to police administration.

24. The statement that the first time the survey team met as a group was when they fastened their seat belts is false. At least several of them were very close colleagues and the group did meet prior to their departure.

25. The reference to the first MSU professors joining Fishel in Saigon in late May of 1955 is not correct. Fishel did not remain in Saigon during the early contract period. He had returned to East Lansing before the survey team began to assemble in Vietnam. Although he visited on one occasion, he was not in residence in Saigon again until he came out to assume the position as chief of the mission for the MSU group in March 1956.

26. The statement that from 1956 on for a period of "four years" Fishel "was the most important American in Vietnam" is incorrect. Without being able to state who the most important American was, it could not have been Fishel since Fishel left Saigon in March 1958.

27. Fishel is labeled an assistant professor of Political Science. The fact is he was then an associate professor.

28. The reference to the conditions of life for the academicians in Saigon are inaccurate in that they describe only the comfortable things about Saigon life and even these inaccurately. There is no reference to the health problem or the insecurity of the situation or the climate. It overglamorizes several aspects of the life in Saigon and refers specifically to "air conditioned villas." Particularly in the early period of the project there was very little air conditioning and that which existed was quite unreliable because of power failures. Electric power failures also affected the availability of water. With perhaps just a few exceptions the "villas" were not air conditioned, although eventually air conditioned bedrooms were provided.

29. References to the salaries, if not inaccurate, can be considered a distortion because the reference does not indicate that the normal salary formula was followed in the case of Vietnam. The normal salary formula equals annualization plus an average of not more than 10% as an incentive increment plus whatever the permissible allowances are for the specific post under U. S. government regulations.

30. The statement that there was "a lack of any substantial scholarly research during the project" is not factual. A quick count shows that at least seven books were published based on work in Vietnam under the project. There were at least 25 monographic studies published (including training manuals) and there were 30 or 40 mimeographed studies and reports based on surveys. In addition there were an uncountable number of scholarly articles contributed to journals.

31. The reference to two-thirds of the MSU faculty getting promotions in Saigon suggests that the rate of promotion was unusually rapid. This runs contrary to the frequently heard complaint that the opposite is true and was true on the Vietnam Project. Furthermore, the rate of promotion even as stated does not appear to be unusually rapid, given the quality of the people sent to Saigon.

32. The reference to CIA men being given academic rank is false. No such academic appointments were made.

33. Reference to the CIA agents' instructions as being "to engage in counter-espionage and counter-intelligence cannot be demonstrated to be factual. While serving for the University, individuals hired from outside were clearly under University supervision and in their activities were restricted to conduct themselves in ways that would carry out the University's project objectives which clearly did not include counter-espionage and counter-intelligence.

34. The statement that the Police Administration division was by far the largest of the three divisions of the MSU group was not true. For 58 months out of the 86 months of the project, the public administration was larger and for three months the two divisions were equal in size. The police division was larger for only 25 months of the project.

35. The direct quotations attributed to Ralph Smuckler by Stanley Sheinbaum are fictitious.*

36. References to the men coming in early in the morning, staying for about an hour and then locking their offices and leaving for the day, is fictitious. Many of the advisors spent most of their time at the Vietnamese offices since that is where counterparts were working. The pattern for the individuals referred to was essentially the same as for the rest of the group and their time in the MSU office far exceeded the reference in the article.

37. Sheinbaum says he remembers signing papers that gave "the CIA guys" faculty status. This is factually inaccurate in that Sheinbaum had no such authority to give faculty rank and, furthermore, none of the people hired from outside positions were given faculty rank. Their Board appointment papers testify to this.

38. The conditions under which the "CIA operation" was terminated are stated falsely. Termination came because of principle and desire to reduce the size of the total group. It had nothing to do with embarrassment referred to in the article. Furthermore, the references to information being brought by Smuckler to Scigliano and passed to Jones are fictitious. This includes the reference to the matters of weeks transpiring until the entire unit could be moved to the offices of the United States mission. It took considerably more than weeks to arrange a transfer of a number of the police functions to USOM since it was necessary for USOM to act up an entirely new civil police division.

39. Reference to the fact that by 1959 the U. S. was making "little pretense of following the Geneva Accords anyway" is false. In the first place the transaction referred to had nothing to do with the Geneva Accords and, secondly, the Geneva Accords were being respected and observed and were a matter of concern to the official community in Saigon.

40. Reference to the task of rebuilding the entire Vietnam police apparatus as belonging to MSU is inaccurate. All such tasks belonged to the government of Vietnam--not to the University group which served as advisors.

41. Reference to Diem as lacking popular support during the first years of his regime would be difficult to substantiate. Considerable evidence exists to the contrary.

42. Reference to supplies including revolvers, ammunition, etc., being "requisitioned by the East Lansing School of Police Administration from stocks left over from America's aid to the French Expeditionary Corps" are purely fictitious. Furthermore, all equipment provided to the Vietnamese police or any other service came as a normal part of American aid provisions to the Vietnamese government. In the field of civil police administration this meant that equipment normally used by police were in fact supplied, not by the MSU project, but by the aid mission directly.

43. The photo copy of what is called "an MSU inventory 1955" carries on it no indication that it is an MSU document. It could have been typed by anybody for any purpose. It probably represents an inventory which was used by the civil guard and/or MSU advisors and/or USOM to appraise the status of equipment needs for the civil guard or other civil police forces in Vietnam. In no sense can it be an inventory of items that Michigan State had or supplied through its East Lansing School of Police Administration.

44. The reference to Brandstatter personally inspecting the palace guard during one of his inspection trips is fictitious. It probably refers instead to the first trip Brandstatter made to Vietnam as a part of the survey team. At that time he was asked to inspect the palace guard but at no time following the inception of the program did he do so.

45. The reference to 33 police advisors at one point in the project is false. At the peak of the police administration program there were 25 advisors. Following mid-1959 the police part of the project was reduced in size considerably (to less than 10) with a reasonable portion of the smaller police advisory team actually coming from the Michigan State campus.

46. References to the reports of Milton Taylor being "often rewritten by the project head" are not true. His reports as all others, were reviewed by other members of the team, including the project head and some of the wording may have been questioned but never rewritten.

47. Milton Taylor was not told by any responsible person on the project that other universities "were in hot pursuit of the juicy Vietnam contract."

48. The accusation that MSU professors failed to bear witness against violations of civil liberties are not true. Criticism of Diem and his government were quite open in Saigon, both among Vietnamese and Americans, and were known to journalists and others who would normally write for public consumption. Some of the MSU staff members in the civil police division, as well as public administration division, were openly critical and frequently so. Criticisms were brought directly to the attention of Diem, to the American ambassador, and to other responsible officials in Saigon. These violations increased in number as the years of the Diem regime progressed and the criticism of professors became more open and in fact were printed. Some of the MSU professors were openly friendly with opposition leaders. Criticism of the Diem regime was made on the basis of professional weaknesses as well as political and civil liberty violations. The observations of David Halberstam referred to in the article, which came following the termination of the MSU group, cannot be assumed to have been valid for the period of the late 50's, but even in the late 50's there were published criticisms to which MSU people contributed directly or indirectly.

48. The reference to the Jaffee and Taylor essay in the New Republic in 1961 is inaccurate in that this was but one of a number of incidents and articles which caused Diem to feel that the continuation of the contract beyond 1962, even in a reduced form, was not desirable from the standpoint of his regime. An article by Frank Child, which appeared earlier, and the activities of several other of the MSU advisory team were of equal or greater importance.

49. The reference to Alfred Seelye going to Saigon to smooth things out by telling Diem that the University was prepared to weed out any future troublemakers is inaccurate. This was not the purpose of Seelye's trip and, contrary to the impression created by the article, the University was not prepared to restrict its personnel along the lines suggested.

50. Reference to the mimeographed reports and documents piled in "out of the way files" in the University Library are false. The various publications and reports of the project are available and are, in fact, being used.

51. The general reference to the dominance of police forces on the University campus is completely false.

52. The quotation attributed to Ralph Smuckler is false in several respects. First, there is no "action" project in Formosa. There is only a faculty exchange program which so far has involved anthropology, history and philosophy exchanges with National Taiwan University. There was at one time a program in the field of agriculture, but this ended several years prior to the writing of the article in Ramparts. Furthermore, the quotation which implies that "anybody not involved in overseas operations is obsolete" is an inaccurate statement in that it does not reflect Smuckler's viewpoint and is ridiculous on the surface.

53. The final question which asks "what is a university doing buying guns anyway" is a false question since it is based on the false assumption that the University purchased guns, an action it did not take.
