Details: By way of background:

On December 14, 2010, an unknown subject used the login "anon1234" to compromise and deface the LATimes.com web page, located on computer servers in Los Angeles, California belonging to parent company Tribune Media.

Chat logs taken from the media seized during the search of DENNIS COLLINS, AKA "owen", revealed that on December 8, 2010, user "AESCcracked" gave to Anonymous members "Sabu", "kayla", "sharpie", "chronom", and others the username "anon1234" and associated password "common2" to the Tribune Media CMS system which was then used in the December 14 intrusion. In these December 8 logs, users "Sabu", "sharpie", "kayla", and "Chronom" (later known as "tflow") discuss how best to make use of the stolen Tribune login credentials.

Also in these chat loges was dialogue indicating that on December 21, 2010, user "AESCcracked" may have sent nude photographs of himself to COLLINS:
