In June 1951, Mircea DIMITRIU told [] that the "Commandant (Horia SIMA) had expressed the desire to meet him and asked [] in what countries he could travel. DIMITRIU added that SIMA had already given [] a first satisfaction by relieving VELESCU from his responsibilities in connection with the "Vestitorul", and by appointing Vasile MAILAT in his stead, with whom [] was in good terms. MAILAT is the only Legionary who knows CASUIST from Rumania.

Approximately two weeks after the meeting, [] was visited by MAILAT and by BARBALESCU (fnu probably Nicolae) in Innsbruck who wished to reach an agreement with CASUIST on the resumption of the publication of "Vestitorul". [] agreed to resume the publication of the paper on one condition that the Legionnaires observe an absolute political neutrality. They all agreed to meet in Salzburg at a later date to discuss the practical details (evidentially so that in the meantime MAILAT might ask for instructions from the Legionary Command). At the Salzburg meeting MAILAT proposed that [] continue to work on the Information section of the paper and prepare an article on the Armistice of 23 August 1944 for the first issue. [] refused to write the article on the grounds that enough had been written on the subject already. MAILAT also agreed to submit all the material for the paper to [] before turning it over to the printer. For a time, following this meeting, [] received numerous letters and telephone calls from MAILAT, who was trying to convince him to write the article, without success.

The Legionnaires, through MAILAT and his assistant BARBULESCU have already sent some material to the printer for "Vestitorul". They also have sent circular letters to all their sympathizers among the Rumanian refugees everywhere, inviting them to send articles for publication in the "Vestitorul" and address them to BARBULESCU in Salzburg. BARBULESCU lives in Salzburg, in the apartment which was formerly occupied by Professor Vladimir PETROVICI.

Vasile MAILAT lives in Salzburg. He worked for AUNER and seems to be working for someone at present, too, as he is interested in gathering intelligence information and prepares files. One of his main agents in intelligence work is Mihail GIUREA, son of Dr. (fnu) GIUREA of Bucharest, who was also a Legionary. Mihail GIUREA's aliases are Engineer Mihail and DRAGOMIRESCU. MAILAT's letter drop in Salzburg and in Freilassing, Germany, is Sandu MARIN, who is the legal tenant of the wooden hut on Elizabethstrasse 38, in Salzburg (known among Rumanian refugees as the "Rumanian Home".) MARIN lives in this hut, and occupies a room in the center of Salzburg and lives at Freilassing, too, where he uses the German Post Office Box #48.
